Satellite Launch Delayed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- A faulty booster control valve today halted a rocket countdown one second short of liftoff and forced a two-day postponement in plans to orbit five military satellites.

Project officials late this morning scheduled a new launch attempt for 5:17 a.m. EST Thursday. Time required to replace the valve forced the delay, they said.

A countdown toward an original 5:07 a.m. blastoff was interrupted by a faulty radar at a tracking station. A second launch attempt, planned for 5:25 a.m., got to within one second of liftoff when an automatic sensing device determined there were troubles on the rocket and stopped the countdown before the motors actually ignited.

Air Force officials said the problem apparently was associated with a control valve in the steering mechanism of one of two strap-on booster rockets.

Data received at mission control indicated the control valve did not open as planned, officials said.

The powerful Titan 3 was scheduled to perform nearly 4½ hours of acrobatic space maneuvers to carry its payload toward a preliminary orbit ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth.

About 22 hours after separating from the rocket's last stage, one of the nuclear detection satellites, called Velas, was to trigger a spacecraft motor to kick it into a circular path 69,000 miles high.

The second Vela sentry was to perform the same maneuver in three days, stationing itself on the opposite side of earth.

The 730-pound Velas, shaped like lumpy beachballs, were built to spot nuclear blasts in earth's atmosphere and deep in space, perhaps as far from earth as Mars.

Dr. James Coon, of the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos (N.M.) scientific laboratory, said the new Velas "have a much improved precision of looking at things so you can be sure you won't be fooled." Sensors aboard six Velas orbited previously might miss nuclear explosions under certain circumstances, he said.

Three other satellites aboard the $15-million Titan 3 had no spacecraft motor and were to remain in the highly elliptical orbit. All three contain engineering and scientific experiments.

One, nicknamed the "windshield wiper satellite," has a small arm inside the spacecraft to sweep across materials such as teflon, stainless steel, silver, gold and tungsten carbide so engineers can measure friction characteristics in space.

The second will study death-dealing and satellite-damaging radiation emitted from the sun, while the third "piggyback" payload investigates other types of radiation in space.

The nuclear detection satellites were to help police the partial nuclear test ban treaty signed in 1963 by the United States, Russia and more than 100 other nations. The pact prohibits nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water or in space, but allows underground detonations.

If a nation hoped to violate the treaty without detection, the best bet presumably would be to pack a bomb in a rocket and explode it millions of miles in space, where natural radiation is already present.

A bomb triggered in the vacuum of space would also not generate the customary fireball with its 10-million-degree heat or make a mushroom cloud. These effects near earth are the result of a bomb's interaction with elements in the atmosphere.

Final Respects Paid to Adenauer

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — This Rhine River city was somber in spring sunshine today as Germans and leaders of the Western world attended a funeral Mass for former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Inside Cologne Cathedral were 2,000 invited guests, including President Johnson, President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain. Later the leaders will discuss common problems with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

Joseph Cardinal Frings, 80-year-old friend of Adenauer, said in a brief funeral sermon that "the German nation will mourn him as it would a father."

Formal eulogies were pronounced earlier at Bonn in a ceremony in the Bundestag — Parliament — by German leaders. The Mass at the 718-year-old cathedral was the last public service for Adenauer, who died last Wednesday at the age of 91.

A private family service in the little Waldfriedhof — forest cemetery — in Rhoendorf, his home town, is the last rite for the man who led postwar Germany from ignominious defeat to a respected place in the community of nations.

Johnson, in a slow-moving limousine, was among the first chiefs of state to reach the cathedral.

Before the altar rail, flanked by a military honor guard of eight generals and admirals, rested the coffin of Adenauer.

In Bonn, police took three students into custody at Bonn university. The three carried placards, including one saying: "A people mourns for a single man. Who mourns for a whole people? 400,000 murdered people in Vietnam are waiting for their funeral Mass."

Johnson and De Gaulle talked together for 10 minutes at a luncheon given by President Heinrich Luebke but the meeting apparently was confined to civilities.

Bid to Delay Toll Roads Defeated

Percy Image Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois is emerging among Republicans as a man who could carry the credentials of a Vietnam peace campaigner into a race for the White House.

Percy heavily underscored in recent days his differences with President Johnson's war policy and; by implication, with Republicans who endorse that policy—including other GOP leaders now considered prospects for the presidential nomination.

He has called for a stepped-up peace effort, emphasizing Asian initiative, for an end to military escalation, and for greater restraint in American bombing of North Vietnam.

At the annual meeting Monday of The Associated Press, he registered a "strong dissent" over U.S. bombing of airfields in the Communist North.

Percy has not advocated military withdrawal, nor has he suggested a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam without some peace move by the Communists.

At the same time, Percy has carved a leading GOP role on a major domestic issue looming for 1968: the critical problems facing American cities.

He won unanimous sponsorship of his 35 Republican Senate colleagues for his bill to promote home ownership as a step toward improving life in the slums.

Vietnam and urban turmoil could be the two key issues in the next presidential campaign. Percy has said repeatedly he is not a candidate, but has not flatly ruled himself out of that campaign.

"I cannot foresee any circumstances under which I would be compelled to be a candidate," he said Sunday.

For three days now, Percy has been elaborating his Viet-

CIA May Be Linked To Probe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans States Item said today in a copyrighted story there is mounting evidence of Central Intelligence Agency links in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's Kennedy assassination probe.

"At least one Garrison probe figure intends to use CIA connections as part of his defense," the newspaper said.

The story said "still others linked to the Garrison investigation have been named as acting for the supersecret espionage organization - as informers, as couriers and munitions carriers."

Gordon Novel, the 29-year-old former French Quarter bar owner who is fighting extradition from Ohio to Louisiana, was named as having the strongest CIA ties.

The newspaper said Novel told intimates "he was a CIA operative and will use this role to battle Garrison's charges."

Novel is free on $10,000 bond in Columbus, Ohio after his arrest on a Louisiana warrant charging that he helped plan the burglary of an oil-field explosive bunker near Houma in 1941.

Council Formed to Give Aid to Area Handicapped

A Bootheel citizen's vocational rehabilitation council whose purpose will be to help draft a master plan for the extension and expansion of services to the handicapped was formed at a meeting Monday night at the El Capri. Twenty attended.

The council consists of laymen who will attempt to determine the number and classification of handicapped persons. They will study existing facilities for them and report their findings to the statewide planning staff in Jefferson City.

Donald Bohannon, is chairman of the council. The council area is formed along lines established by the regional planning commission. It includes Scott, Stoddard, New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

In Missouri vocational rehabilitation is administered by two agencies: The vocational rehabilitation division of the state department of education and the bureau for the blind of the state welfare department, Dick Simpson, Jefferson City, planning assistant for rural rehabilitation needs, explained.

Simpson and Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, conducted the meeting to form the council.

Bill Morgan, Kennett, was appointed vice chairman of the council.

Simpson and Gann have met with community leaders in the state to form citizens councils for three months. The establishment of the councils is a first step to gather more information on the needs of the handicapped.

The councils will conduct studies and report vocational needs to a 54 - member advisory board in Jefferson City, which will deal with them.

Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, helped residents form a bootheel council to promote vocational rehabilitation Monday night at the El Capri.

The steps in vocational rehabilitation are: diagnosis, evaluation, treatment, training, job placement and follow-up, Simpson said.

It is estimated that for every successful rehabilitation made in the state, four persons go unattended, Simpson said. Of the 11,000 persons who came for help last year, 3,600 were rehabilitated, he noted.

Mann presented slides showing success stories throughout the state of handicapped persons, who have been rehabilitated.

The council is expected to meet at least twice a year. It will be about two months before the state planning staff will be ready to ask questions about area problems, Simpson said.

The council will attempt to answer questions concerning the blind, heart, cancer and stroke patients, neurologically impaired persons, mentally ill, the aging, public offenders, deaf and hard of hearing persons, mentally retarded and mentally defective persons with behaviorial disorder and the economically and socially deprived.

Bill Still Lacks Full Support

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House defeated a move today that would have delayed Missouri action in the toll road area until next year.

The House had just re-opened debate on Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' embattled toll road bill when Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs, offered a substitute plan.

It called for a 15-member commission to study feasibility of toll roads in Missouri and how to finance them. The commission would report to the legislature by Feb. 1, 1968 and would, Sheehan said, allow the state to approach the toll road problem sanely.

Rep. Robert E. Young, R-Carthage opposed it. He said Kansas already has a plan to build a toll road from Kansas City south to Galena, Kan.

And the bill's sponsor, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Bates County, reported a financial adviser said Monday the Kansas plan would cost too much to make it feasible.

Sheehan's amendment was defeated 51-105 but the vote indicated the Democratic governor didn't have solid backing from the majority Democrats.

The majority Democrats scheduled a presession caucus, presumably to lay strategy for the battle to preserve the Hearnes version of the bill without crippling amendments.

Three days last week the House wrangled over the bill, adding restrictive amendments when the governor wasn't looking and then taking them off under the lash of his pressure.

State Education Needs Outlined to 600

The needs for school reorganization and a statewide equalization program to improve the quality of education in Missouri were presented at a regional meeting sponsored by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation at the high school cafetorium Monday night.

Arthur L. Summers of the state department of education in Jefferson City and Fred Morrow, superintendent of Poplar Bluff schools, explained the recommendations of the Missouri governor's conference on education. About 600 persons attended.

The governor's conference grew out of a report done the Academy for Educational Development, Inc., an educational research firm. Its report, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," is critical of the educational facilities and policies in the state.

Summers, speaking on "State Master Plan for School Reorganization and Junior College Districts," noted that an education must include more than the traditional "three r's". Education must be geared for all ages and must be designed to meet the needs of modern society, he said.

The trend in Missouri, as in the rest of the country, is toward consolidation of school districts to provide better and more economical education, Summers said.

In Missouri the number of school districts has decreased 75 per cent in 31 years, and progress has been greatest since the passage of the reorganization law by the legislature in 1948, he pointed out.

In 1948 more than 8,000 school districts existed in Missouri; there are now 840. Some districts have been reorganized as many as five times, Summers added.

Studies have revealed the weakness of the small school district. Two factors must be considered in determining boundaries of the district: financial and human resources, he said.

"There is only so much local wealth in an area, but districts can be merged to provide a broad tax base, which provides a more comprehensive program of education," he explained.

The governor's conference recommended that the urban-suburban district have 1,000-1,500 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12; the recommendation for outstate districts is 500-750 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12. Southeast Missouri districts do not meet these standards, Summers said.

Summers is a member of the Great Plains School District Reorganization Project. The project has four states — Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota -- cooperating to study school district structure and reorganization.

Morrow explained some of the recommendations of the governor's conference for an equalization program in Missouri.

The conference recommended a comprehensive high school building program from a master plan devised by the state department of education. Apportionment of state funds based on the financial needs of the district would pay for new schools and for schools already built. This plan would help districts that lack an adequate bonding capacity.

The equalization program would help employ regular teachers, special education teachers and teacher - aides and pay part of the cost for purchasing books and equipment.

Another benefit of the program would be financing of vocational - technical education. Morrow said that money is probably being wasted on such programs and that studies should be made to determine what types of vocational -technical education are needed in a district.

For junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools the conference report recommended that 50 per cent of the financing be provided by the state and 50 per cent by the district.

Not every district would be able to pay its share because of the lack of wealth. However, some districts are able to pay more than the 50 per cent local financing and would be able to make up the deficit of the poorer districts. This is the basis of the proposed equalization program, whereby wealthier districts contribute tax dollars to the poorer districts.

Other recommendations included a reduction of the two-thirds majority needed for passage of a bond issue to a simple majority, a change in the 10 per cent bond indebtedness of the district, an increase from 180 to 200 days as the minimum requirement for school attendance each year and a change in the tax levy election law.

Presently if a proposed tax levy increase is defeated, the levy reverts back to the state minimum requirement of $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation. The conference recommended that the current levy be retained if the proposed increase were defeated.

Morrow said that other revenues must be found besides the property tax. Property owners already pay enough tax on their property, he said. He also advised that money for building construction no longer be taken out of the general revenue fund, which the state needs for other purposes.

Prior to the addresses a slide presentation, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," prepared by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, was shown.

The film pointed out that education in Missouri leaves much to be desired. In 1965 Missouri was ranked 12th in the nation in per capita income but ranked 47th in proportion of income spent on education.

The failure to provide enough money for education has made itself felt. Missouri dropped to 17th in the nation in per capita income in 1966, ranking 48th in the proportion of income spent on education.

The increasing mobility rate in the nation makes inadequate education a national problem. Because of the movements of families from one school district, county or state to another, a pupil whose education was inferior, where he formerly lived becomes the problem of his new school district.

Metropolitan areas have difficulty getting enough teachers and adequate facilities; rural areas have difficulty providing top quality education for a diminishing population.

Although there is a trend toward reorganization in Missouri, a waste continues in numerous faculty members teaching a small number of pupils in areas where population is decreasing. This waste of money results in low teacher salaries. Missouri pays only 90 per cent of the national average for teacher salaries.

The increasing need for physical facilities can be met by a broader distribution of the tax dollar. The district should be small enough to provide communication between school administrators and the population and large enough to eliminate tax dollar waste.

Because of the decline in farm employment, schools must prepare many rural youths for

U.S. Warplanes Strike Closest Yet to Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes pounded relentlessly at prime targets in North Vietnam today, hitting again inside the port city of Haiphong and closer than ever before to the center of the Communist capital of Hanoi.

The new strikes against North Vietnam's two major cities came within 24 hours of the first attacks of the war on MIG airfields in North Vietnam.

The stepup in the air was accompanied by a jump in American plane losses. Four U.S. planes were reported lost over the North — three Monday and one today. American pilots reported shooting down two Communist MIG17s Monday.

The U.S. losses announced today brought the total American planes reported lost over the North to 514.

A Peking broadcast said two U. S. fighters were shot down Monday in a dogfight just over the border of Red China from North Vietnam, but a U. S. spokesman denied it. He said, "I can find no report that would even remotely relate to this."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Hanoi reported a total of 15 U. S. planes shot down today -- three at Hanoi and 12 over Haiphong. It said one American pilot was captured.

Saigon announcements were limited to the one plane. The record loss over North Vietnam in a single day was eight planes shot down last Dec. 2.

Only sporadic fighting was reported in the ground war in South Vietnam. Scattered enemy resistance was encountered in Operation Manhattan in War Zone C northwest of Saigon which involves about 20,000 U.S. troops. Spokesmen said 18 enemy had been killed since the operation began Sunday. American losses were put at 2 killed and 14 wounded.

A new U.S. Marine operation was announced in the menaced northern part of South Vietnam. Called Operation Shawnee, it began Saturday and so far 27 of the enemy have been killed, spokesmen said. Four Marines were reported wounded.

On the U.S. political side in Saigon, there was a change of command with the departure of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and the arrival a few hours later of his successor, Ellsworth Bunker. Bunker said President Johnson had asked him to renew the U.S. pledge "to support the true revolution of the Vietnamese people."

The accelerating air war over North Vietnam after weeks of bad weather included two strikes this morning on the fringes of Hanoi.

One strike by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief pilots hit a railroad repair yard which the American command said was 2¼ miles east-northeast of the center of the city and across the Red River from the capital's most densely populated section. The second raid, also by Thunderchiefs, was made on an electrical transformer site seven miles north of the city.

An American spokesman said the raid on the railroad repair yard was the closest ever made to Hanoi but the target "does not appear to be in the city limits."

The previous closest strike to Hanoi were on an oil storage area 2.5 to 3 miles north of the city last summer.

Pilots reported encountering MIGs, surface-to-air missiles and heavy antiaircraft fire over both targets in the Hanoi area.

While the Air Force fliers were going after the targets near Hanoi, Navy pilots from the carriers Bon Homme Richard and Kitty Hawk attacked a cement plant U.S. spokesmen said was 1.1 miles west of the center of the city of Haiphong.

A Navy officer said the plant was adjacent to the thermal power plant Navy planes attacked last Thursday in the first raid inside the city limits of the big port.

Other Navy fliers hit an ammunition depot four miles south of Haiphong and an oil storage center about 2½ miles north of the city, the spokesmen said, but they had no details on these raids.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes flew 88 missions against North Vietnam Monday, and from early indications followed up with that many or more today.

As a parish priest, he brought the first county agent to southeast Missouri. He taught farmers how to raise chickens and aided by a county agent planted high-grade corn near Chester, Ill., on an island in the middle of the Mississippi River.

Monsignor Hildner was a founder of the national Catholic rural life conference four decades ago.

Dr. John C. Weaver spoke of the broad functions of the University of Missouri in his inaugural speech at Columbia as 14th president of the institution.

This was a wise emphasis because part of his task is to educate Missourians of the broad range of service performed by the University.

It is notable that he didn't neglect the human values of higher education:

"No human institution has more reason than an educational institution to deny or stoutly resist any philosophy which would submerge the paramount importance of the individual. Knowledge can only be held and ultimate wisdom can only come to individual minds."

Even though the University is growing larger Dr. Weaver held as "the most fundamental expectation" that "ways can be found to make education a warmly human experience for individual people, one by one."

One of the major sources of student unrest at the University of California at Berkeley has been due to sheer size - the student feeling that he had lost identity in a mechanical educational process.

There are many definitions of the goals of education.

Some are false at least to a degree.

"To make a person feel comfortable in the universe."

Another came from Dr. Henry Van Dyke, an eminent professor:

"The true object of education is to train one to think clearly and rightly."

It is not enough to teach a student how to best perform any task - whether it be practice of law, performing a surgical operation or publishing a newspaper - because methods change. He must learn to be flexible, how to adapt to change and where to obtain accurate information. His challenge is one of constant adaption. Given a taste of learning, he must eagerly continue the process or the world will pass him by.

These goals have been obscured in a growing emphasis on tests, diplomas and degrees. Human values have been either ignored or submerged.

Clear thinking is an individual responsibility. It never was more needed and never more neglected.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

SOVIET TV OWNERS ARISE IN INDIGNATION

Sometimes when you get the bill for the repairs of the TV set, you feel like Wells Fargo did when some baddie made off with another payroll. But you really must, as the saying goes, count your blessings.

We knock television quite a bit in these United States. We call it the "boob tube" and the eye to "a vast wasteland" and are often convinced that the people who write the commercials are congenital idiots who, in addition to their other problems, don't know an adverb from a preposition.

In the Soviet Union, they have television and refer to it as "the blue screen - that is, when the set is working. And if it isn't, citizen rights to TV repairs are protected by the Ministry of Communications; but it just doesn't work out that way. They have a bureau or a ministry or an agency for everything over there and, considering the Soviet complaints about TV repair we hear of lately, we Americans ought to make much more noise about losing Freedoms to an ever-expanding, bureaucratic, over-centralized federal government which wants to do everything for us.

Now some people might say that TV repair in Russia is a petty case in point, but let them read on to determine if it isn't symbolic of the virtues of our system and the unworkability and tyranny of the Red way of doing things.

Moscow has a weekly newspaper called "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" and it published an article by Comrade writer V. Matveiev entitled "Television Service Problems." And they got 'em.

Matveiev says millions of TV owners ("these expensive gadgets") are compelled to get out the overhaul warranty the day they buy their set and have to use up their spare time going to the Moscow Television Trust for repairs. It all sounds terribly trying, according to Matveiev.

He says the story of Comrade Benenson ought to receive particular attention from the Ministry of Communication and the Television Trust.

Benenson called in TV Technician Osipov from Repair Shop 24 (they have numbers for everything). After Osipov operated, Benenson sat down to watch that provocative show "Seminars for Corn Growers" and waited for picture and sound, none of which the set could deliver. However, clouds of smoke did emanate from the set's complex innards. Benenson called Repair Shop 24 again and received the services of Technician Comrade Zalkind who discovered a "do-it-yourself" safety device in the set, and promptly accused it of burning out the power transformer and forever ending the short, unhappy life of the picture tube.

After having missed the monumentally entertaining corn grower's seminar, plus "Tales by Grandmother Television" and a sports show, Benenson sat down and wrote a letter to the Ministry of Communications. His request was patently bourgeois: he wanted the overhaul performed at the expense of the repair shop which put that "safety device" in the set in the first place.

Evidently, the Ministry passed the buck to Television Trust because T.T. wrote a letter to Benenson saying it was he and not Television Repair Shop 24 who bore responsibility for installing the offending safety bug.

Benenson told "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" that the charge was nonsense "as I know nothing about the inside of a TV set and never open mine. . .It is difficult for me to understand why I cannot get any protection of my rights from the Ministry of Communications. Instead I am accused of a swindle."

With that, Comrade Matveiev polished off one case and launched into another even more distressing:

"The author (of the complaining letter) is Leybutin; he is an ordinary Moscovite and a TV set owner." He called a technician from the Ostankinskaia Street repair shop four times. A technician or two would come, do something, take two or three rubles ($2.22 or $3.33) and depart, leaving behind a set that wouldn't work.

"The last time," Comrade Leybutin wrote, "they said the picture tube had to be checked. They took out the block and left it on the table. The next day I took time off from my work, spent two hours in bringing the mechanism to the atelier (workshop), and three days later went back to pick it up. They refused to take into account the amounts paid by me for previous overhauls and would not even check their records."

Leybutin might have been hoping for a break in this storm of heartless bureaucracy, but it wasn't to be. The next day a technician showed up, put in the picture tube and changed another tube. Two days later another tube burned out.

The cycle is now apparently complete," he complained in his letter to "Ekonomicheskaia gazeta", "the set will have to be taken to the atelier all over again, which will probably cost another ten rubles ($11.11). . . .

Writer Matveiev said it was his opinion that the optimism of the Ministry of Communications would disappear completely if it knew about still another case; that of Comrade Prikhodko of Krasnopresensky Raion. Prikhodko was more than disappointed with his "T-emp-6" TV set. The brand name is open to all kinds of interpretation, one being that it works temporarily and then only for six minutes. This interpretation is not nearly as sarcastic as it seems, for note writer Matveiev's comment: "The plant and TV repair shop workers run from (Prikhodko) like the devil from frankincense."

We don't know if Comrade Prikhodko ever solved his problem, for we left him shortly after he was charged two rubles for a service call during which the mechanic "dusted the inside of the set, installed a safety device, soldered a contact, calculated his fee" and left. One week later, the set was out of order again.

Writer Matveiev says these are only some of the cases and if there are millions of them, they must reflect the real situation "which the Ministry of Communications refuses to recognize."

TV set owners of America, be thankful.

In the United States today, every minute of every day, an automobile is stolen. Last year half a million Americans found themselves the victims of auto theft -- one of the country's most frequent, expensive and serious crimes.

Auto thefts have increased more than 60 per cent since 1960, more than double the percentage increase in auto registrations. At the present rate, more than a million cars a year will be stolen by the 1970's.

Why do these auto thefts occur? What can be done to combat the auto theft problem? Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, states that one major factor in car theft is the failure of owners to lock their own automobiles. He points out that 8 out of 10 cars stolen are unlocked and that 4 out of 10 cars stolen have the keys in the ignition.

"The 'key' in combating the auto theft problem is literally in the hands of the individual citizen," Colonel Hockaday declared. "By forming the simple habit of removing the keys from the ignition and locking the automobile when he leaves it, the probability that his car will be stolen decreases about 50 per cent.

"An unlocked parked car with the keys in the ignition is an open invitation to the auto theft. By simply removing your keys and locking the car, you help remove the invitation," he concluded.

TOO MUCH FOR TOO MANY

Last spring's jump in food prices, as is the case with every inflationary price rise, set off the usual hunt for a scapegoat. To many, the logical culprit could be found at the beginning of the food pipeline -- the farmer. But the farmer, far from being a culprit, is a victim of inflation to a greater extent than most other segments of the country.

Prices received by farmers for all products in 1965 were nearly 9 per cent below the average for 1947-49. During the same period, weekly wage rates to labor have gone up 107 per cent. Things farmers bought rose in price by 28.3 per cent.

No, the farmer is not to blame for inflation. Inflation is the result of too many people asking too much from their government, and the government trying to provide too many "free" services and handouts. In defending the farmer, Farm Journal magazine says, "...we suggest that they, the Secretary of Agriculture, the President, the rest of his administration -- and Congress - concern themselves more with the real cause of inflation: government spending and expansionary fiscal policies. Let's have less wailing about food prices and some real shouting about that."

Bang went prospects for oil in Swamp East Mo., for at least another thousand years. Radio says shale in the Rockies contains three times the known reserve of the entire world. It's no wonder our boys in Jeff City passed a law to block production in Mo. that could have worked a hardship on the monopoly. Like the Ozark minerals, 85% of this shale land belongs to Unk and the prospects are that no royalties will go to prior landowners, parks. You see, a few short years ago Unk (the taxpayers) put up the dough to build two pilot plants to invent a process for extracting oil from shale. The news leaked out that they made gasoline for 12 1/2¢ per gallon. It was also reported the monopoly ask for the rights to use the process and lease shale lands. Evidently there was a compromise. The plants was shut down and by this date maybe rotted down. Possibly some top hat boys feel they may get flung out of office in the near future and should get theirs now while the getting is good. H.L. Hunt Says

ACTIVATE ONE CONVERT A WEEK

The concept of government by the people, a sacred principle for generations in this Nation, is dealt with very harshly by the present Electoral College System. Incredible as it may seem, the people of 39 States can be disfranchised by the other 11 States which contain the largest cities. These 11 States, with their big cities, can elect a President even if he lost each of the other 39 States 5 to 1 or more. Twenty - two of the 32 Presidents who have been elected to office were from only four States.

A vast number of citizens earnestly desire this Reform. If two million of them would start today and activate one other in a week who would in turn activate another in a week, at the end of one week there would be four million activists; in two weeks there would be eight million; in three weeks 6 million; in four weeks 32 million, and in five weeks 64 million. They need only activate: Converts are awaiting.

If one fails his weekly mission his clergyman, a friend among educators or a "good mixer" may bring up the average by activating 10 or more that week. The Crusade could become enjoyable and irresistible. This Reform has been under way for many years, but whether or not it is accomplished is dependent upon people like you. For 15 years able Statesmen and good organizations have started, but when the movement failed to reach Crusade proportions nothing happened, and this much-desired Reform fell by the wayside. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Judging by the mail that has been flooding both congress and this newspaper office, the issue of Doddism is much broader than that of Tom Dodd himself.

The public is fed up with having one law for it and another law for congress. People figure that the men who write the laws should not only know them but live up to them as conscientiously as those who don't write them but must obey them.

The case of Sen. Dodd is a very important example. The senate is getting awfully tired of hearing about this case and would like to forget it. Senators have been hoping against hope that he would resign. But the public is not tired and will probably keep pouring on the heat, not only regarding Dodd but the whole question of ethical conduct. The least that the public wants is observance of the law; and, anyway you look at it, Dodd has violated the law in at least five instances as follows:

1. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act, Section 658C of the 1953 supplement to the general statutes states: "the payments, expenditures, promises and liabilities which any candidate for senator of the United States may make or incur, directly or indirectly, in aid of his nomination or election or both, shall not exceed one - third of the salary of said office for one year."

Dodd's salary as senator for one year is $30,000. In 1963 alone, which was not an election year, he raised $54,663.

Dodd is a lawyer. He has practiced law in Connecticut most of his life, having been a U. S. Attorney, a congressman and a senator. Yet he wantonly and knowingly violated the election laws of Connecticut. Were he an ordinary citizen he would be prosecuted and put in jail.

REWARD FOR FAVORS

2. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act also forbids the acceptance of donations and favors from corporations on penalty of $1,000 fine or one year in jail or both. Dodd received such favors as the loan of an Oldsmobile for three years, countless free airplane trips, plus donations from Connecticut insurance companies, gun manufacturers, and many other firms for which he did favors.

3. It is against the federal law for a member of congress to seek favors for anyone from the federal government in return for monetary or material reward. Dodd performed a long list of favors already published in this column, sustained by sworn testimony, and too numerous to mention here.

4. The Federal Corrupt Practices Act forbids any candidate to receive contributions from a corporation. Dodd received $18,000 from the International Latex Company, which his former employees testified was to secure an ambassadorship for Abe Spanel, chairman of Latex. The latter point was denied by Dodd, but the first point, namely the receipt of funds from a corporation, was not denied.

5. It is specifically against the law to use campaign funds for personal expenses unless they are listed as personal income, and taxes paid thereon. Dodd used most of the $173,000 he collected at testimonial and campaign dinners for his own use, and he paid no taxes on it.

What the American people will be watching in the Dodd case and other cases of unethical congressional conduct is whether there is going to be one standard of enforcement for the congressmen who make the laws and another standard of enforcement for other people who don't write them but have to obey them.

SUMMER JOBS NEEDED

The White House is worried that this summer may be as long, hot and frustrating as the last one unless private employers get solidly behind the President's youth opportunity campaign for vacation jobs for students.

Approximately 13 million youngsters between 16 and 21 will soon be seeking summer work, many so they can return to school in September. And at least two million will be out of luck unless local employers do their best to help.

Vice President Humphrey, chairman of the job campaign, with Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, spearheaded the employment of one million youngsters in the summer of 1965 and 1,250,000 last summer. This year Humphrey and Wirtz started a month early in order to make a better record.

To this end, acting Commerce Secretary A. B. Trowbridge has sent an open letter to 900,000 employers, and within two weeks had received more than 10,000 replies promising cooperation. Among the employers who are doing their bit are Jones and Laughlin Steel of Pittsburgh, who hired 1,200 extra personnel from student ranks last summer; Dayco of Dayton, Ohio, 300; and General Telephone of Fort Wayne, Ind., 100.

Barring a maximum national effort, however, the problem will be greater than last year, when about one out of ten young white people seeking jobs, and one out of four Negro students, were out of work and on the streets all summer.

Vice President Humphrey has reminded summer jobs applicants in a booklet of employment tips that they can help themselves by (1) Talking to their school counselor; (2) Carrying social security and draft cards, a work permit and personal references; and (3) "Be clean and dress neat, be honest and polite."

"Play it cool," suggests the VP. "After work, you can wear mod clothes and swing!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D. C. -- While coveys of Congressmen are highballing around town on the cocktail circuit, railroad and labor leaders are on a collision course. There's no progress in the crisis.

So, truly knowledgeable insiders are flatly predicting a 10 - day railroad strike beginning at 12:01 May 3 on 200 Class A roads despite the President's warning that "many terrible consequences will flow" from such a nationwide stoppage.

And, lest we forget, this is not merely a matter of fact freight and haulage of vital war materiel. There can be even graver consequences for the undisturbed.

Commuter trains funneling into hundreds of major cities from Jamaica Bay to San Francisco Bay also will be paralyzed. Suburbia, take notice.

"Let's face it," said a grim spokesman for the unruffled Roy Siemiller, AFL - CIO machinists leader, who through this column has been warning of a coast - to - coast stoppage since last December, "there will be a strike unless we get the settlement we seek from the lines.

"We have the right to strike and we will until it becomes illegal. That will take a new law. We'll fight it. We already are battling it.

"We've asked our 1900 lodges to contact their Senators and Representatives. We'll urge our Congressional friends to demand a roll call so those who vote for compulsory arbitration will have to stand up and be counted".

Even grimmer is the warning of the Senate's dean of labor experts, Wayne Morse, who has been talking to President Johnson.

"There's only a 50 - 50 chance we will get a law through, anyway," opined Morse, quite sadly, reminding us that the nation could not take a 48-hour rail stoppage in this day of Vietnam.

"And if the Congress does enact such a law, it will take them at least 10 days to pass it. But they can't count on me. I'll vote against compulsory arbitration. It's not good for labor. It's not good for industry.

"We're finished with economic freedom if we get compulsory collective bargaining".

Those who know R. Siemiller always take his word as a prediction. His soft voice has a built - in gentle chuckle which dilutes the force of what he asserts. And he is talking strike for many reasons -- all inherent on other storm fronts.

One reason unknown to the public is that this, for the moment, is the show of Machinists' vice - president Joe Ramsey who ran the airline strike. "Joe" is set to retire next July 23rd. This is his last go - round. He is determined to skyrocket the $3.05 hourly rate of skilled railroad shop machinists -- a figure as much as $1.50 under other prevailing rates, according to the million - member International Assn. of Machinists.

Siemiller is backing up his departing colleague, whose place in the union's railroad section he will take.

Both were angered by the President's Emergency Board recommendation for a job evaluation study, so it could be determined whether the skilled people deserve to get extra pay.

Retorts the union, the hell with job evaluation. We have been opposed to it for years.

Siemiller and Ramsey want more money for their men now -- without any job analyses and work tests. And they want more than the other on - train unions have agreed to take.

So the railroads' spokesman, old "Doc" Wolfe, says the lines just can't do that, since 70 per cent of the 24 railroad unions have agreed to settle for a five per cent raise.

Siemiller -- now easily more militant than Walter Reuther and the shades of Mike Quill wrapped into one -- replies with a threat to walk out that May night -- unless his people in the railroad shops get seven per cent and special pay for the skilled men.

That's it. That's the deadlock.

As for the threat of Congressional action -- spontaneous and unrehearsed because there is no strike legislation -- the union will fight it for many reasons including the fear of mass firings. Some 17,000 locomotive firemen lost their jobs after Congress passed a compulsory arbitration law during the Kennedy regime back in '63.

So, says Siemiller, "we'll strike the nation's railroads right after midnight May 3. You can say that and be right."

If the shop crafts do hit, it will be the first time in 45 years. But Siemiller never has hesitated to stop history's high-ball express.

Mrs. Ronald Rice

JEFFERSON CITY - Miss Katherine Elizabeth Pollock and Ronald Rice were married March 25 in the First Baptist church.

Miss Pollock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Pollock, 10 Meadow Lark Lane, formerly of 404 Broadway, Sikeston. Pollock was district construction engineer with the district 10 office of the highway department in Sikeston eight years.

James Fuller, minister of music of the First Baptist church, sang "Song of Ruth" by Gounod; "The Lord's Prayer," "He shall Feed His Flock" by Handel; and "Twenty-Third Psalm." Mrs. Wallace Crane, professor of music at Stephens College of Columbia and a former resident of Sikeston, composed the music for the "Twenty-Third Psalm."

The bride chose a floor-length gown of imported linen, fashioned with a bateau neckline and traditional long tapering sleeves. Bands of three dimensional venise lace trimmed the waist and the skirt. The detachable chapel-length train was enhanced by three bands of venise lace.

The bouffant elbow-length veil of imported silk illusion, with hand-rolled edge, was secured by a cluster of silk petals outlined with seed pearls.

The bride carried a crescent of giant King Alfred jonquils and lilies of the valley adorned with ribbon streamers tied in lovers' knots and decked with lilies of the valley.

The bride's going away corsage also was taken from an end of the crescent of the bridal bouquet.

Miss Nancy Gilliland, 409 East Capitol Ave., was maid of honor and Miss Elvira Krueger, 409 East Capitol Ave., was bridesmaid.

Attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of lemon imported silk linen. The bodice was fashioned with round semi-scooped neckline and short sleeves. The controlled skirt was accented in back with a floating watteau panel.

They wore matching face-length veils held by a crown of swissbraid. Each held a single white Dutch iris, encircled with sweet alyssum, trimmed with green and yellow bow and streamers. Their attire was completed with three quarter length gloves and matching yellow shoes.

Serving as ushers were Daniel Pollock, brother of the bride; Rodney Nebel, 1501 Payne Dr., and Richard Klamm, 119 Ridgeway Dr.

Pollock and Nebel also lighted the candles.

Gregory Rice, nephew of the groom, and son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Rice, carried the rings to the altar.

The bride's mother wore a three-piece lilac knit dress with three quarter sleeves. Her hat was a satin pillbox surrounded by a crown of satin petals covered with soft lilac veiling.

The groom's mother chose a three-piece aqua dress with patterned overblouse. Her hat was a halo of black felt with a single feather to the side and veiling drifting to her face. A single white calla lily with a corona of individual hyacinth blossoms was at the shoulder of each.

All wedding flower arrangements were designed by the bride's mother.

The reception was held at the church. Mrs. L. V. McLaughlin was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Dale Pollock, aunt of the bride, serving the cake; Miss Judy Rice, cousin of the groom; Miss Shirley Jacobs, and Mrs. Walter Liddell, aunt of the bride. Mrs. McLaughlin is a former Sikeston resident. Her husband was district 10 engineer of the highway department.

The bride is a 1961 graduate of Sikeston high school and is a 1964 graduate of Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

The groom is a 1957 graduate of Jefferson City high school and a 1966 graduate of Lincoln University. He is employed as an accountant at Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company of Missouri.

The couple will live at 1428 West Main St.

Secretaries Week Being Observed

CAPE GIRARDEAU - In observance of Secretaries Week, members of Girardot Chapter of National Secretaries Association (International) held a luncheon today at the Marquette Hotel. Serving as chairman of this year's Secretaries Week Committee was Miss Ona Wright.

Miss Virginia Crawford, president of the chapter, and Miss Mildred Wallace appeared on the KFVS television Breakfast Show this morning to discuss the purpose of Secretaries Week.

Each year, the last full week of April has been set aside for the observance of Secretaries Week in order to bring recognition to secretaries for the vital role they play in business, industry, education, government, and the professions. This year marks the 25th anniversary of the National Secretaries Association. Girardot Chapter is one of eight chapters in Missouri and is composed of members from Cape Girardeau, Sikeston, and Jackson.

Canalou Club Meets With Mrs. Croom

CANALOU - The Community club met in the home of Mrs. David Croom for dessert Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

As an appetizer, Mrs. B. P. Melton, foods leader, served a chicken salad to illustrate her lesson. She explained that the salad dressing, which she had made, was low in calories, but that the salad contained necessary food values.

She said that in their zeal for losing weight, people will endanger their health by cutting out necessary vitamins and other food values, along with calories. The extension service has charts on this subject.

Mrs. F. A. Mitchell and Mrs. Croom are on a screening committee for Job Corps candidates. Applicants should contact them.

The next meeting of the club will be on May 17 with Mrs. Orrin Hunt.

Sikeston Wins Sub-District

Bruce Farris Hurls No-Hitter

By RON JAYNES
Standard Sports Editor

A no hit, 17 strike out performance by Sophomore, Bruce Farris enabled the Bulldogs to defend their sub-district baseball title and beat the Richland Rebels, 5-0.

The Dogs defeated the Rebels for the championship last season and moved through district and sectional play and into the semi-finals of the state high school baseball tournament before being defeated.

Yesterday's win was the Dog's sixth against one loss and it was right hander Farris' second of the season against no losses.

Farris was superb, not yielding a base on balls.

Loser Stan Gaylord, who had won five games this season, yielded nine hits and gave up two bases on balls in his seven innings of pitching. Gaylord had poor backing in the field. The team as a whole committed six errors leading to a run in each of the Dogs third and fourth innings.

Last season in district play the Bulldogs had trouble with a left handed pitcher. Yesterday's cool weather seemed to have made the Rebels ace hurler a little wild and allowed the Dogs to advance extra bases on two wild pitches and one balk.

Farris retired the side on strikeouts in four of the seven innings of hurling and allowed only one ball to get out of the infield, that for the second out in the final inning. He faced 21 batters.

The Bulldogs' infield made only three putouts in the game, one in the second by the second baseman, one in the third by the second baseman and one in the seventh by the second baseman. The putout in the third inning was credited to Mike Garner, who picked the batter off base and caught him in a rundown.

Farris allowed only one base runner during the game and that was in the third inning after two were out. He hit Pat Kirby with a pitch, who was later picked off base for the third out.

The Sikeston squad came to bat in the bottom half of the first inning and had Greg Bailey reach first on an error. Wayne Limbaugh followed with a fielders choice that forced Bailey at second and Garner followed with a drive to center that a fielder caught for the second out. Manley ended the inning by flying out to left field.

The Dogs' first score came in the third inning after two were out. Gary Wiss started the inning by bouncing back to the pitcher. Bailey collected his first hit of the afternoon, stole second base and went to third on Limbaugh's sacrifice fly to left. He scored on Mike Garner's infield error to the shortstop.

Garner went to second on the passed ball at first base on the shortstop's error and scored on Manley's base hit. Webb Edwards forced Manley for the final out of the inning in which the Dogs collected two runs on three hits and one Richland error.

Sikeston pushed across its final runs in the fourth inning after two were out. The Dogs collected hits by Wiss, Felker, Bailey, Garner and Manley for three runs as Richland committed two errors.

Sikeston will meet the winner of this week's sub-district game at Hayti. Campbell is the favorite. The game is scheduled for VFW stadium before May 6.

Bailey and Manley each collected two hits while Garner, Farris, Scudder, Felker and Wiss had one apiece.

Golfers Upset Central

By Arnie

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Bulldog golfers won their sixth straight match of the year yesterday by defeating the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers, 157-159. This match marked the first time the Bulldogs have defeated the Tigers on the Cape course.

Jim Warf, Sikeston's red-hot freshman, led the field with a two over par, 37. Rounding out the top four for the Dogs were Charles Stamp, Chuck Meyers, and Charles Atchison. All three boys carded 40s to bring Sikeston's total to 157.

Central's Bob Spradling finished with a 38 after taking a four-stroke penalty for carrying too many clubs. Bob played well all the way around but under USGA regulations he had to take the penalty. Central Coach Muir stipulated before the match began that USGA rules would govern all play.

The Tigers' Gene Helton and Jerry Kaiser both finished with 40s. Steve Henry carded a 41.

Other scores in the varsity match were Ned Matthews 41 and King Sidwell 42. Dan Beatty and Jay Sheets both shot a 43 for the Tigers.

The junior varsity team match closed in a tie. Both teams carded 182.

Barry "Gour" Greer and Gene Spitzmiller led the Bulldog scorers with 43s followed by David Whiteaker 46 and Rick Fakes, who charged in with 50 strokes.

Brad Kahtz led Central junior varsity scorers with a 42. He was followed by Jim Owens 46, Jim Kein 47, and Rick Adams, who finished with a 47.

Other B team scorers for Sikeston were Jim Godsey 51, Jim Hux 54, and Al Stepp 64.

Rounding out Central's B scores were Craig Horkey 48, Ricky Drace 53, and Charles Harrison 54.

With this victory under their belt, the SHS golfers are on their way to greater heights. The district match in May will be played over this same course, and with a 157 total, the Dogs are feeling that go all the way spirit.

Cards Go Down In 13

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unsinkable Ted Abernathy has his submarine ball on target again and the Cincinnati Reds are sailing a steady course in the early National League race.

Abernathy torpedoed the skidding Houston Astros with 1 2-3 innings of clutch relief pitching Monday night, protecting a 3-1 victory that ran Cincinnati's winning streak to five games.

The veteran reliever, who throws with an unorthodox underhand motion, rescued winner Sammy Ellis in the eighth inning and registered his fifth save of the young season. He has appeared in eight of the Reds' 13 starts.

"I'm sure glad he's on my team," slugger Deron Johnson said after the Reds drafted Abernathy from Atlanta's Richmond farm club during the winter. "It takes years to learn to hit a curve that goes down, and then you run into a guy like Abernathy who throws one that goes up."

Abernathy, who set an all-time record of 84 appearances — all in relief — and finished with a 2.58 earned run average two years ago while with the Chicago Cubs, slipped to a 4.55 ERA in 58 games for the Cubs and Braves last season.

Atlanta, seeking to protect its younger pitchers from the draft, placed the 34-year-old right-hander on the Richmond roster. The Reds, desperate for relief pitching, grabbed him.

Abernathy's strong finish against the Astros, who have dropped eight in a row, and Tony Perez' three-run homer lifted the Reds into the league lead.

St. Louis dropped a 6-5 decision to Los Angeles in 13 innings and fell into a second-place tie with idle Philadelphia. The Dodgers - Cards struggle was the only other game played in the NL.

76ers NBA Champions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "This is the greatest team in the history of professional basketball," declares Coach Alex Hannum of his Philadelphia 76ers, the champions of the National Basketball Association.

"They established a won-loss record for regular season play, beat the Boston Celtics in the Eastern playoffs and defeated San Francisco's Warriors twice on their own court."

By a 125-122 margin, the 76ers beat the Warriors on Monday night to capture the final playoffs, four games to two. Superiority at the free throw line and rugged play by Wilt Chamberlain did it.

The 7-foot 1-inch Most Valuable Player of the NBA capped his performance when he loomed in front of the Warriors' Rick Barry and forced an off-line shot when the San Franciscans trailed by one point with 15 seconds to play.

Stars of the 76ers were many, a team where the players picked each other up and where a 12-point deficit late in the third quarter of the final game was more than made up. Overall, Philadelphia hit 41 times from the free throw line while the Warriors notched only 22 free throws.

Wally Jones started them out with a 16-point first quarter and reserve Billy Cunningham hit for 11 of his 17 total in the final stanza when the 76ers surged back.

Still the big man was Chamberlain with 24 points, 23 rebonds and a non-statistical job of forcing and blocking Warrior shots. Winners of 68 while losing only 13 during the regular season, the Philadelphians were hard pressed in this playoff.

Going in with a 3-2 margin in games, the 76ers trailed 94-82 with 4 minutes, 39 seconds remaining in the third period. As Chamberlain put it, "I'd rather be a little behind because then we don't become complacent."

Coach Bill Sharman of San Francisco, admitting his club has great potential with its many young players, added, "You have to look to the 76ers for the next few years. They will be tough to beat."

Netmen Shut Out Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- The Bulldog tennis team shut out the Chaffee Red Devils yesterday 6-0. This was the third victory for the netmen against four defeats.

In the singles division, Junior Wythe Miller came through in flying colors as he defeated Ron Robinson, 6-1 and 6-4. Wythe has been playing well all year but this was his first singles victory.

Bob McCord of the Dogs slipped by Larry Margrabe, 6-1, 2-6, and 7-5.

Sikeston's Hank Lippert came back strong after his narrow defeat Saturday against Cape Girardeau Central. He defeated Dan Sadler 7-5 and 7-5.

"Big Bill" Dickerson won easily over Dan Heeb, 6-0 and 6-3.

"Pro" sets were played in the doubles competition. Sikeston had no trouble in either match.

Dickerson and Lippert got back on the winning trail as they defeated Margrabe and Riley 8-3.

The netmen will try to bring their record to the 500 mark tomorrow as they journey to Cape Girardeau to play the host Tigers.

$620,000 Raised For New Hospital

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The total subscribed to the new St. Francis hospital campaign has reached $620,000. The goal is $1 million.

The general division under the chairmanship of Milton Leyhe will hold its kick-off at the Arena at 7 p.m. May 2. More than 500 will attend. Chairmen, colonels, team captains, team members and other volunteers will attend along with their husbands, wives and friends.

Volunteers will receive prospects pledge cards.

They're having a good time. So what could they possibly need from you?

The point is, you could be there. Salt spray in your face and the whole bit. Because in this land dreams do come true. For a lot of people. Ordinary people.

That's why we need our freedom and independence. So we can all pursue our own special dreams.

Help defend that freedom by joining the Air Force Reserve. If you served as a pilot, navigator, panel engineer or loadmaster, you can especially help. If you are an inactive Reservist, you are urged to participate actively in the Ready Reserve. You'll like the change of pace from your normal daily routine. And you get Reserve pay too.

Let's keep this a land where dreams can come true.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE HOT NUMBER

When buxom Belle walked down the street, it was pure language in action. Consequently, the local telephone company decided to determine whether she was using her telephone for improper purposes by "tapping" it. As it turned out, in thinking that Belle was a hot number, the telephone company had the wrong number. Belle, was as proper as Little Orphan Annie, only better looking.

Unfortunately for the telephone company, it discovered the revelation at the same time Belle discovered the "tapping." Furious, she sued the telephone company for eavesdropping on her.

"I've been embarrassed and sick for weeks knowing that strangers have been listening in on my private conversations," she weeped in court. "A telephone company has no right to peek into the lives of its subscribers."

"It sure does," answered a telephone official. "We've got a right to make sure our telephones are being used only for lawful purposes. In fact, it is our duty."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the telephone company pay for eavesdropping?

This is how the judge ruled: Belle collected. The judge held that a person is entitled to collect for an intrusion into their private activities where the intrusion is of such a nature as to outrage or cause mental suffering, shame or humiliation to a person of ordinary sensibilities.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

But I say unto you. . ., Love your enemies. (Luke 6:27).

PRAYER: O God, forgive us all bitterness and hatred. Help us to love our enemies, even as Jesus taught us to do and as He did. By Thy grace strengthen us. In the Savior's name we ask. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Everybody cries on your shoulder and I want my turn. I honestly don't know what you can do to help me but just letting off steam is worth something.

I'm a dairy worker who wants to stay on the farm but I don't see how I can. Most dairy farmers work almost 16 hours a day and don't even make enough money to support their families. We have to keep up a front for the cows because if they catch us looking sad THEY get depressed and you know Old Bossy's output depends on how happy she is.

I know I could make more money and work shorter hours if I went into another line of work but I like dairy farming and I think I am needed. I don't want to quit. Please give me some advice, Ann Landers, and some hope, if you can. -- C. P., RUDYARD, MICH.

Dear C. P.: I don't know much about dairy farming, but I have a good friend who does. I have asked Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to respond to your letter. Here is his answer:

Dear Mr. C. P.: Please don't quit. We need you.

Every word of your letter is true. Dairy farmers are overworked and underpaid. Most dairy farmers get at 4 o'clock in the morning seven days a week, and their average pay runs approximately 60 cents an hour.

When dairy farmers began to leave the farms in droves last year to take jobs offering better pay and shorter hours, the Department of Agriculture gave milk supports a healthy boost. This kept some of the dairy farmers on the job. You were one who stayed, and we are grateful.

Please don't give up. We are keeping an eye on you fellows. Tell this to your cows, too. We want them to be happy so they will give more milk and you income will go up. You deserve it. -- Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dear Ann Landers: It is exactly one year ago today that he left me. I was 30. He was 33. We had a beautiful home and three handsome sons who look very much like their father. I remember now the times he asked me to invite his mother to dinner. I said, "I refuse to put myself through the agony. I can't stand her." And then there were the times he asked me to invite his business associates for cocktails. I told him to keep his business friends out of our home because they were not our social equals, and it wouldn't do to mix the two.

One morning he left for work as usual. He telephoned from his office to say he was coming back at 3:00 P.M. -- to pack his bags. I asked him where he was going. He answered: "I am leaving you."

I replied, "You can't go. I love you. He said, "That's the first time you have uttered those words in three years. I've waited a long time to hear them. It's too late now, baby."

Ask the women in your reading audience when was the last time they said "I love you" to a hard-working husband. I have said those words many times lately, but my husband has not been around to hear me.-- STILL HURTING

STATE LOSES TAX MONEY ON REBUILT TRUCKS

JEFFERSON CITY - A Missouri corporation recently ordered 20 trucks for use in its business from a large manufacturer. The corporation paid the sales tax to the state and was awaiting delivery when it was notified that shipment would not be made.

The Department of Defense had pre-empted the order to use the trucks in the Viet Nam War, and the state had to refund the sales tax.

But war had had a broader effect on the sales tax in Missouri, according to Director of Revenue Thomas David.

With the shortage of trucks, trucking firms and other corporations have resorted to repairing, and in many cases, completely rebuilding their old trucks to add a few more years of use.

Since no new registration is required for the truck kits used in rebuilding - registration is only required for a new chassis - many truck owners are getting a new truck in effect without having to pay sales tax.

David said the sales tax loss to the state is at least $150,000 a year through such rebuilding of trucks.

On the other hand, common carriers have been exempt from sales taxes under a Missouri statute for years on the repair, replacement and manufacture of their vehicles, whether they be airplanes, trains, or buses.

Reportedly, the pressure for such a statutory exemption came from certain airlines and railroads which operate major maintenance plants in Missouri. Therefore, a jet airliner could receive a new engine, or a truck with all new parts, and the state cannot levy a tax on these items.

David said he could see a financial need for the state to be able to levy sales taxes on items manufactured by or for common carriers, but that this was not within the province of the Department of Revenue - explicitly pointing out that this was a statutory exemption subject to change only by the Legislature.

He is concerned, however, with corporations in the state which do not operate as common carriers, but are virtually rebuilding new trucks on old chassis without reporting this to the sales tax division.

At present, he said there is no way his department can enforce the sales tax on these truck repair kits. But he added that the Attorney General is attempting to find a solution to the problem without making a statutory change, since this is an administrative problem apart from the statutory exemption for common carriers.

HEARNES' TOLL ROAD BILL RECEIVES AMENDMENTS

The House this week was expected to pass Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' toll road bill, but not before it had tacked on several amendments.

High on the governor's legislative priority list, the bill would establish a state toll road authority with the power to conduct feasibility studies for and direct construction of toll roads in the state to supplement the limited resources of the state highway system. The Senate already has passed the measure.

The controversy arose over the bill during debate on the House floor, where certain representatives, led by Rep. James I. Spainhower (D-Marshall), voiced opposition to the provision allowing the proposed toll authority to have unrestricted use of the gross annual revenue in the state road fund, primarily when a toll road failed to pay for itself.

Rep. Spainhower managed to gain approval of an amendment which would have limited the amount of the road fund to be used on toll roads to three per cent in any one year.

But in an unusual move, reported to have been prompted by the governor, the House voted the next day to reconsider the Spainhower amendment and then voted it out - leaving the state road fund again available to the toll authority, which will consist of the members of the State Highway Commission and the governor.

Following this action however, Rep. Harold Holliday (D-Kansas City) led a successful assault on the bill in the form of two amendments.

One of these would remove authority from the authority to set speed limits and truck height, weight and width limits for vehicles traveling on the toll roads. He argued that violations of such provisions were punishable misdemeanors and only within the province of the Legislature to stipulate, as it does for all other highways.

Holliday's second amendment would lower the amount of purchases the toll authority could make, above which open bids would be required. The bill provided that the authority could make purchases up to $25,000 without submitting them to bids, and Holliday convinced a majority of the legislators that the amount should be lowered to $5,000 - the same restriction governing purchases by other state agencies.

HOUSE DEFEATS RESORT LIQUOR BILL

A bill which would extend the sale of liquor by the drink to two Lake of the Ozarks resorts was defeated last week in the Missouri House.

Debate over the bill resulted in a clash between its sponsor, Rep. Joseph W. Beckerle (D-St. Louis) and Rep. Thomas D. Graham (D-Jefferson City).

As introduced, the bill would allow sale of liquor by the drink to resorts with a minimum of 80 rooms - which would have included only the Lodge of the Four Seasons and Tan-tar-a.

Graham sought to amend the bill and lower the room minimum to 20.

Beckerle charged that such an amendment "would allow any roadside honky-tonk to qualify for a license."

Graham's amendment failed and the bill was defeated 67 to 86.

nam position. The process began Saturday with a call for redoubled peace efforts.

"The only rational policy is to pursue peace with at least as much vigor and invention as we now pursue war," Percy said.

On Sunday, he criticized current bombing policies, saying U.S. warplanes should aim at carefully selected infiltration routes, not at power plants and similar targets.

"If we bomb all over North Vietnam, we constantly run the risk of involving innocent people, innocent civilians who have not been forewarned that there will be bombing in those areas," Percy said.

At the AP meeting in New York, Percy restated his critical view of administration peace terms, suggested Asian nations send more troops to Vietnam and proposed once again they take the initiative in seeking a settlement.

Counseling against escalation of any sort, he said the United States must limit both its combat measures and its settlement hopes to an agreement assuring South Vietnamese freedom from North Vietnamese coercion.

"Such a settlement will require that the Viet Cong be assured of participation in South Vietnamese political life as a legal political party competing peacefully at the polls and shunning violence," Percy said.

In Columbus, Jerry Weiner, attorney for Novel, told of the newspaper story and speaking for Novel, said of the CIA link report: "It's utterly ridiculous. Novel is not now and has never been a CIA agent."

Novel has referred to the alleged bunker burglary as "the most patriotic burglary in history." He has told associates, the newspaper said, that the munitions burglary was "a war materials pickup made at the direction of his CIA contact."

In a story appearing in the Dayton Daily News, Novel said: "I think Garrison will expose some CIA operations in Louisiana". He did not elaborate.

The States-Item quoted Novel as saying he was working for the CIA in New Orleans. Part of his job, he contends, was to operate the Evergreen Advertising Agency as a front of CIA communications.

Novel prepared special radio commercials for use in the United States and Canada, the newspaper said, to alert agents to the date of the Bay of Pigs invasion. The key alert codes were "Star Christmas trees, and "holiday trees." Novel's agency placed $72,000 worth of radio time in 1960, the story said.

Novel said Ferris and several Cubans were involved in the explosives bunker incident.

Novel said the explosives were picked up and consolidated soon after the bunker incident. He said they were eventually taken by boat to Cuba for use in a diversionary operation in connection with the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Garrison's charges states the bunker incident took place Aug. 1, 1961 - three months after the Cuban invasion.

Houma police say records of the burglary are missing.

Novel made his statements to the Dayton Daily News and the States-Item. In Ohio, he has repeatedly branded Garrison's probe a "fraud."

first of the year for the House and the second for the Senate. As is usual for after-dinner sessions, neither produced much progress.

The Senate advanced a bill to abolish the last vestiges of open range in Missouri, to make illegal those little pockets in the Ozark hills where livestock may run at large.

It has been a prime controversy in past legislative sessions but advancement in the Senate came without any opposition.

State and federal agencies would have to pay half the cost of fencing the perimeters of publicly owned land another bill advanced.

Also moved up after long argument was a measure to allow 65-foot combination truck outfits to travel any highway in the state. Now they are allowed only on designated routes.

The Senate also advanced a bill to raise the pay of Dr. George A. Ulett, director of the Division of Mental Diseases, from his present $25,000 a year to $35,000.

In the House even less was accomplished.

Sponsors had to lay back a bill calling for a seven-member commission to set up a master plan for reorganization of all public school districts. Opposition flared and restrictive amendments were offered one after another.

Advanced were bills to:

Extend state aid to education of exceptional but not gifted children.

Provide teacher retirement benefits or teachers working in state mental hospitals.

Crum Admits To Forgeries Police Say

James Willie Crum, 18, Matthews, has admitted to taking part in the passing of three forged checks and attempting to pass two other checks in the past few months, police said today.

Crum was arrested by police Saturday at Graber's Store, 106 East Front, and has admitted to attempting to pass a $25 forged check there, police reported.

He also attempted to pass a check for $25 during March at Knight's Department Store, 112 North New Madrid, forged on "Doyle Porter." He walked off and left a radio behind while persons at the store were reviewing the check, police said.

Crum admitted to passing a $25 check also at Barkett's Big Star Market, Highway 60 East, on March 7, forged on "James W. Hodges and made to "Freddie Agee," police reported.

He admitted passing another $25 check at the J. C. Penney Co., Inc., 101 New Madrid, March 30, forged on "A. D. Throop." A $30 check was passed at Jerry's Quick Service, Matthews by Crum, police said. He forged the name of "James W. Hodges" at the grocery store, police reported.

Sgt. Leonard Campbell reported that Crum admitted to the forgery during questioning Monday.

In other police activity, a 14 year old Sikeston youth was arrested Monday night after the car he was driving went out of control in the 1600 block of East Kathleen and knocked over three mailboxes. The youths name was withheld because he is a juvenile.

Mrs. Jesse Rodgers, 244 Watson, reported to police Monday afternoon that her house was broken into and $5.50 was taken from her daughter's piggy bank. The house was ransacked, police reported.

Fern McCain, 903 South Prairie, reported to police Monday that her billfold containing $24 and an identification and credit cards was taken Friday from Sikeston Laundry and Cleaners, 517 East Malone, police said.

Officer Johnny Taylor reported at noon Monday that six parking meters on North Kingshighway and one meter on West Malone were damaged.

Jerry Agee, 18, 213 Petty, was arrested by police Monday at his residence and transferred to Mississippi county authorities on a state warrant.

Dexter Firm Low Bidder on Bluff School

POPLAR BLUFF--The Brown Construction Company, Dexter, is the apparent low bidder on a contract for construction of the proposed Area Vocational School to be built by the Poplar Bluff School District.

Their bid of $303,665 was one of seven bids received from six Southeast Missouri contractors and a Jonesboro, Ark., builder.

Bid openings were held at 7:30 p.m. last night in the Senior High School Library in the presence of the Poplar Bluff Board of Education.

Harold Porterfield and Patrick Donnellan of the Poplar Bluff architectural firm of Donnellan and Porterfield, conducted the bid opening.

Other total base bids for the project are as follows: Inland Construction Company, Charleston, Mo. $316,980; Smith & Livingston Construction Company, Poplar Bluff, $327,000; Sites Construction Company, Cape Girardeau, $329,000; W. M. Francis Construction, Lutesville, $335,000; M & M. Construction Company, Jonesboro, Ark., $351,650; and Ray Clinton Construction Company, Sikeston, $358,000.

The bids are subject to further consideration by the Board of Education and the State Department of Education before contracts can be awarded.

Fred M. Morrow, superintendent of schools, said he will meet with officials of the State Department of Education to seek the agency's approval of matching federal funds

County Bond Sales Increase

Sales of U.S. savings bonds during March remained strong, to round out a record-breaking first quarter. Sales in Scott County totaled $23,387, according to Donald R. Bohannon, county chairman for savings bonds. That brought the total for three months here to $89,-192, he said. This is 13.7 of the county's 1967 quota.

On the state level, sales during March in Missouri amounted to $14,170,527, as reported by John L. Wilson, state chairman. Total for the first three months of 1967 amounted to $41,672,159.00.

Bond sales in other area counties were:

Bollinger - $243 in March; $5,136 total for year; 10 per cent of county quota.

Satellite Launch Delayed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- A faulty booster control valve today halted a rocket countdown one second short of liftoff and forced a two-day postponement in plans to orbit five military satellites.

Project officials late this morning scheduled a new launch attempt for 5:17 a.m. EST Thursday. Time required to replace the valve forced the delay, they said.

A countdown toward an original 5:07 a.m. blastoff was interrupted by a faulty radar at a tracking station. A second launch attempt, planned for 5:25 a.m., got to within one second of liftoff when an automatic sensing device determined there were troubles on the rocket and stopped the countdown before the motors actually ignited.

Air Force officials said the problem apparently was associated with a control valve in the steering mechanism of one of two strap-on booster rockets.

Data received at mission control indicated the control valve did not open as planned, officials said.

The powerful Titan 3 was scheduled to perform nearly 4½ hours of acrobatic space maneuvers to carry its payload toward a preliminary orbit ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth.

About 22 hours after separating from the rocket's last stage, one of the nuclear detection satellites, called Velas, was to trigger a spacecraft motor to kick it into a circular path 69,000 miles high.

The second Vela sentry was to perform the same maneuver in three days, stationing itself on the opposite side of earth.

The 730-pound Velas, shaped like lumpy beachballs, were built to spot nuclear blasts in earth's atmosphere and deep in space, perhaps as far from earth as Mars.

Dr. James Coon, of the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos (N.M.) scientific laboratory, said the new Velas "have a much improved precision of looking at things so you can be sure you won't be fooled." Sensors aboard six Velas orbited previously might miss nuclear explosions under certain circumstances, he said.

Three other satellites aboard the $15-million Titan 3 had no spacecraft motor and were to remain in the highly elliptical orbit. All three contain engineering and scientific experiments.

One, nicknamed the "windshield wiper satellite," has a small arm inside the spacecraft to sweep across materials such as teflon, stainless steel, silver, gold and tungsten carbide so engineers can measure friction characteristics in space.

The second will study death-dealing and satellite-damaging radiation emitted from the sun, while the third "piggyback" payload investigates other types of radiation in space.

The nuclear detection satellites were to help police the partial nuclear test ban treaty signed in 1963 by the United States, Russia and more than 100 other nations. The pact prohibits nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water or in space, but allows underground detonations.

If a nation hoped to violate the treaty without detection, the best bet presumably would be to pack a bomb in a rocket and explode it millions of miles in space, where natural radiation is already present.

A bomb triggered in the vacuum of space would also not generate the customary fireball with its 10-million-degree heat or make a mushroom cloud. These effects near earth are the result of a bomb's interaction with elements in the atmosphere.

Final Respects Paid to Adenauer

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — This Rhine River city was somber in spring sunshine today as Germans and leaders of the Western world attended a funeral Mass for former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Inside Cologne Cathedral were 2,000 invited guests, including President Johnson, President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain. Later the leaders will discuss common problems with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

Joseph Cardinal Frings, 80-year-old friend of Adenauer, said in a brief funeral sermon that "the German nation will mourn him as it would a father."

Formal eulogies were pronounced earlier at Bonn in a ceremony in the Bundestag — Parliament — by German leaders. The Mass at the 718-year-old cathedral was the last public service for Adenauer, who died last Wednesday at the age of 91.

A private family service in the little Waldfriedhof — forest cemetery — in Rhoendorf, his home town, is the last rite for the man who led postwar Germany from ignominious defeat to a respected place in the community of nations.

Johnson, in a slow-moving limousine, was among the first chiefs of state to reach the cathedral.

Before the altar rail, flanked by a military honor guard of eight generals and admirals, rested the coffin of Adenauer.

In Bonn, police took three students into custody at Bonn university. The three carried placards, including one saying: "A people mourns for a single man. Who mourns for a whole people? 400,000 murdered people in Vietnam are waiting for their funeral Mass."

Johnson and De Gaulle talked together for 10 minutes at a luncheon given by President Heinrich Luebke but the meeting apparently was confined to civilities.

Bid to Delay Toll Roads Defeated

Percy Image Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois is emerging among Republicans as a man who could carry the credentials of a Vietnam peace campaigner into a race for the White House.

Percy heavily underscored in recent days his differences with President Johnson's war policy and; by implication, with Republicans who endorse that policy—including other GOP leaders now considered prospects for the presidential nomination.

He has called for a stepped-up peace effort, emphasizing Asian initiative, for an end to military escalation, and for greater restraint in American bombing of North Vietnam.

At the annual meeting Monday of The Associated Press, he registered a "strong dissent" over U.S. bombing of airfields in the Communist North.

Percy has not advocated military withdrawal, nor has he suggested a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam without some peace move by the Communists.

At the same time, Percy has carved a leading GOP role on a major domestic issue looming for 1968: the critical problems facing American cities.

He won unanimous sponsorship of his 35 Republican Senate colleagues for his bill to promote home ownership as a step toward improving life in the slums.

Vietnam and urban turmoil could be the two key issues in the next presidential campaign. Percy has said repeatedly he is not a candidate, but has not flatly ruled himself out of that campaign.

"I cannot foresee any circumstances under which I would be compelled to be a candidate," he said Sunday.

For three days now, Percy has been elaborating his Viet-

CIA May Be Linked To Probe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans States Item said today in a copyrighted story there is mounting evidence of Central Intelligence Agency links in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's Kennedy assassination probe.

"At least one Garrison probe figure intends to use CIA connections as part of his defense," the newspaper said.

The story said "still others linked to the Garrison investigation have been named as acting for the supersecret espionage organization - as informers, as couriers and munitions carriers."

Gordon Novel, the 29-year-old former French Quarter bar owner who is fighting extradition from Ohio to Louisiana, was named as having the strongest CIA ties.

The newspaper said Novel told intimates "he was a CIA operative and will use this role to battle Garrison's charges."

Novel is free on $10,000 bond in Columbus, Ohio after his arrest on a Louisiana warrant charging that he helped plan the burglary of an oil-field explosive bunker near Houma in 1941.

Council Formed to Give Aid to Area Handicapped

A Bootheel citizen's vocational rehabilitation council whose purpose will be to help draft a master plan for the extension and expansion of services to the handicapped was formed at a meeting Monday night at the El Capri. Twenty attended.

The council consists of laymen who will attempt to determine the number and classification of handicapped persons. They will study existing facilities for them and report their findings to the statewide planning staff in Jefferson City.

Donald Bohannon, is chairman of the council. The council area is formed along lines established by the regional planning commission. It includes Scott, Stoddard, New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

In Missouri vocational rehabilitation is administered by two agencies: The vocational rehabilitation division of the state department of education and the bureau for the blind of the state welfare department, Dick Simpson, Jefferson City, planning assistant for rural rehabilitation needs, explained.

Simpson and Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, conducted the meeting to form the council.

Bill Morgan, Kennett, was appointed vice chairman of the council.

Simpson and Gann have met with community leaders in the state to form citizens councils for three months. The establishment of the councils is a first step to gather more information on the needs of the handicapped.

The councils will conduct studies and report vocational needs to a 54 - member advisory board in Jefferson City, which will deal with them.

Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, helped residents form a bootheel council to promote vocational rehabilitation Monday night at the El Capri.

The steps in vocational rehabilitation are: diagnosis, evaluation, treatment, training, job placement and follow-up, Simpson said.

It is estimated that for every successful rehabilitation made in the state, four persons go unattended, Simpson said. Of the 11,000 persons who came for help last year, 3,600 were rehabilitated, he noted.

Mann presented slides showing success stories throughout the state of handicapped persons, who have been rehabilitated.

The council is expected to meet at least twice a year. It will be about two months before the state planning staff will be ready to ask questions about area problems, Simpson said.

The council will attempt to answer questions concerning the blind, heart, cancer and stroke patients, neurologically impaired persons, mentally ill, the aging, public offenders, deaf and hard of hearing persons, mentally retarded and mentally defective persons with behaviorial disorder and the economically and socially deprived.

Bill Still Lacks Full Support

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House defeated a move today that would have delayed Missouri action in the toll road area until next year.

The House had just re-opened debate on Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' embattled toll road bill when Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs, offered a substitute plan.

It called for a 15-member commission to study feasibility of toll roads in Missouri and how to finance them. The commission would report to the legislature by Feb. 1, 1968 and would, Sheehan said, allow the state to approach the toll road problem sanely.

Rep. Robert E. Young, R-Carthage opposed it. He said Kansas already has a plan to build a toll road from Kansas City south to Galena, Kan.

And the bill's sponsor, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Bates County, reported a financial adviser said Monday the Kansas plan would cost too much to make it feasible.

Sheehan's amendment was defeated 51-105 but the vote indicated the Democratic governor didn't have solid backing from the majority Democrats.

The majority Democrats scheduled a presession caucus, presumably to lay strategy for the battle to preserve the Hearnes version of the bill without crippling amendments.

Three days last week the House wrangled over the bill, adding restrictive amendments when the governor wasn't looking and then taking them off under the lash of his pressure.

State Education Needs Outlined to 600

The needs for school reorganization and a statewide equalization program to improve the quality of education in Missouri were presented at a regional meeting sponsored by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation at the high school cafetorium Monday night.

Arthur L. Summers of the state department of education in Jefferson City and Fred Morrow, superintendent of Poplar Bluff schools, explained the recommendations of the Missouri governor's conference on education. About 600 persons attended.

The governor's conference grew out of a report done the Academy for Educational Development, Inc., an educational research firm. Its report, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," is critical of the educational facilities and policies in the state.

Summers, speaking on "State Master Plan for School Reorganization and Junior College Districts," noted that an education must include more than the traditional "three r's". Education must be geared for all ages and must be designed to meet the needs of modern society, he said.

The trend in Missouri, as in the rest of the country, is toward consolidation of school districts to provide better and more economical education, Summers said.

In Missouri the number of school districts has decreased 75 per cent in 31 years, and progress has been greatest since the passage of the reorganization law by the legislature in 1948, he pointed out.

In 1948 more than 8,000 school districts existed in Missouri; there are now 840. Some districts have been reorganized as many as five times, Summers added.

Studies have revealed the weakness of the small school district. Two factors must be considered in determining boundaries of the district: financial and human resources, he said.

"There is only so much local wealth in an area, but districts can be merged to provide a broad tax base, which provides a more comprehensive program of education," he explained.

The governor's conference recommended that the urban-suburban district have 1,000-1,500 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12; the recommendation for outstate districts is 500-750 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12. Southeast Missouri districts do not meet these standards, Summers said.

Summers is a member of the Great Plains School District Reorganization Project. The project has four states — Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota -- cooperating to study school district structure and reorganization.

Morrow explained some of the recommendations of the governor's conference for an equalization program in Missouri.

The conference recommended a comprehensive high school building program from a master plan devised by the state department of education. Apportionment of state funds based on the financial needs of the district would pay for new schools and for schools already built. This plan would help districts that lack an adequate bonding capacity.

The equalization program would help employ regular teachers, special education teachers and teacher - aides and pay part of the cost for purchasing books and equipment.

Another benefit of the program would be financing of vocational - technical education. Morrow said that money is probably being wasted on such programs and that studies should be made to determine what types of vocational -technical education are needed in a district.

For junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools the conference report recommended that 50 per cent of the financing be provided by the state and 50 per cent by the district.

Not every district would be able to pay its share because of the lack of wealth. However, some districts are able to pay more than the 50 per cent local financing and would be able to make up the deficit of the poorer districts. This is the basis of the proposed equalization program, whereby wealthier districts contribute tax dollars to the poorer districts.

Other recommendations included a reduction of the two-thirds majority needed for passage of a bond issue to a simple majority, a change in the 10 per cent bond indebtedness of the district, an increase from 180 to 200 days as the minimum requirement for school attendance each year and a change in the tax levy election law.

Presently if a proposed tax levy increase is defeated, the levy reverts back to the state minimum requirement of $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation. The conference recommended that the current levy be retained if the proposed increase were defeated.

Morrow said that other revenues must be found besides the property tax. Property owners already pay enough tax on their property, he said. He also advised that money for building construction no longer be taken out of the general revenue fund, which the state needs for other purposes.

Prior to the addresses a slide presentation, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," prepared by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, was shown.

The film pointed out that education in Missouri leaves much to be desired. In 1965 Missouri was ranked 12th in the nation in per capita income but ranked 47th in proportion of income spent on education.

The failure to provide enough money for education has made itself felt. Missouri dropped to 17th in the nation in per capita income in 1966, ranking 48th in the proportion of income spent on education.

The increasing mobility rate in the nation makes inadequate education a national problem. Because of the movements of families from one school district, county or state to another, a pupil whose education was inferior, where he formerly lived becomes the problem of his new school district.

Metropolitan areas have difficulty getting enough teachers and adequate facilities; rural areas have difficulty providing top quality education for a diminishing population.

Although there is a trend toward reorganization in Missouri, a waste continues in numerous faculty members teaching a small number of pupils in areas where population is decreasing. This waste of money results in low teacher salaries. Missouri pays only 90 per cent of the national average for teacher salaries.

The increasing need for physical facilities can be met by a broader distribution of the tax dollar. The district should be small enough to provide communication between school administrators and the population and large enough to eliminate tax dollar waste.

Because of the decline in farm employment, schools must prepare many rural youths for

U.S. Warplanes Strike Closest Yet to Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes pounded relentlessly at prime targets in North Vietnam today, hitting again inside the port city of Haiphong and closer than ever before to the center of the Communist capital of Hanoi.

The new strikes against North Vietnam's two major cities came within 24 hours of the first attacks of the war on MIG airfields in North Vietnam.

The stepup in the air was accompanied by a jump in American plane losses. Four U.S. planes were reported lost over the North — three Monday and one today. American pilots reported shooting down two Communist MIG17s Monday.

The U.S. losses announced today brought the total American planes reported lost over the North to 514.

A Peking broadcast said two U. S. fighters were shot down Monday in a dogfight just over the border of Red China from North Vietnam, but a U. S. spokesman denied it. He said, "I can find no report that would even remotely relate to this."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Hanoi reported a total of 15 U. S. planes shot down today -- three at Hanoi and 12 over Haiphong. It said one American pilot was captured.

Saigon announcements were limited to the one plane. The record loss over North Vietnam in a single day was eight planes shot down last Dec. 2.

Only sporadic fighting was reported in the ground war in South Vietnam. Scattered enemy resistance was encountered in Operation Manhattan in War Zone C northwest of Saigon which involves about 20,000 U.S. troops. Spokesmen said 18 enemy had been killed since the operation began Sunday. American losses were put at 2 killed and 14 wounded.

A new U.S. Marine operation was announced in the menaced northern part of South Vietnam. Called Operation Shawnee, it began Saturday and so far 27 of the enemy have been killed, spokesmen said. Four Marines were reported wounded.

On the U.S. political side in Saigon, there was a change of command with the departure of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and the arrival a few hours later of his successor, Ellsworth Bunker. Bunker said President Johnson had asked him to renew the U.S. pledge "to support the true revolution of the Vietnamese people."

The accelerating air war over North Vietnam after weeks of bad weather included two strikes this morning on the fringes of Hanoi.

One strike by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief pilots hit a railroad repair yard which the American command said was 2¼ miles east-northeast of the center of the city and across the Red River from the capital's most densely populated section. The second raid, also by Thunderchiefs, was made on an electrical transformer site seven miles north of the city.

An American spokesman said the raid on the railroad repair yard was the closest ever made to Hanoi but the target "does not appear to be in the city limits."

The previous closest strike to Hanoi were on an oil storage area 2.5 to 3 miles north of the city last summer.

Pilots reported encountering MIGs, surface-to-air missiles and heavy antiaircraft fire over both targets in the Hanoi area.

While the Air Force fliers were going after the targets near Hanoi, Navy pilots from the carriers Bon Homme Richard and Kitty Hawk attacked a cement plant U.S. spokesmen said was 1.1 miles west of the center of the city of Haiphong.

A Navy officer said the plant was adjacent to the thermal power plant Navy planes attacked last Thursday in the first raid inside the city limits of the big port.

Other Navy fliers hit an ammunition depot four miles south of Haiphong and an oil storage center about 2½ miles north of the city, the spokesmen said, but they had no details on these raids.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes flew 88 missions against North Vietnam Monday, and from early indications followed up with that many or more today.

Satellite Launch Delayed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. AP -- A faulty booster control valve today halted a rocket countdown one second short of liftoff and forced a two-day postponement in plans to orbit five military satellites.

Project officials late this morning scheduled a new launch attempt for 5:17 a.m. EST Thursday. Time required to replace the valve forced the delay, they said.

A countdown toward an original 5:07 a.m. blastoff was interrupted by a faulty radar at a tracking station. A second launch attempt, planned for 5:25 a.m., got to within one second of liftoff when an automatic sensing device determined there were troubles on the rocket and stopped the countdown before the motors actually ignited.

Air Force officials said the problem apparently was associated with a control valve in the steering mechanism of one of two strap-on booster rockets.

Data received at mission control indicated the control valve did not open as planned, officials said.

The powerful Titan 3 was scheduled to perform nearly 4½ hours of acrobatic space maneuvers to carry its payload toward a preliminary orbit ranging from 5,300 to 69,000 miles above the earth.

About 22 hours after separating from the rocket's last stage, one of the nuclear detection satellites, called Velas, was to trigger a spacecraft motor to kick it into a circular path 69,000 miles high.

The second Vela sentry was to perform the same maneuver in three days, stationing itself on the opposite side of earth.

The 730-pound Velas, shaped like lumpy beachballs, were built to spot nuclear blasts in earth's atmosphere and deep in space, perhaps as far from earth as Mars.

Dr. James Coon, of the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos (N.M.) scientific laboratory, said the new Velas "have a much improved precision of looking at things so you can be sure you won't be fooled." Sensors aboard six Velas orbited previously might miss nuclear explosions under certain circumstances, he said.

Three other satellites aboard the $15-million Titan 3 had no spacecraft motor and were to remain in the highly elliptical orbit. All three contain engineering and scientific experiments.

One, nicknamed the "windshield wiper satellite," has a small arm inside the spacecraft to sweep across materials such as teflon, stainless steel, silver, gold and tungsten carbide so engineers can measure friction characteristics in space.

The second will study death-dealing and satellite-damaging radiation emitted from the sun, while the third "piggyback" payload investigates other types of radiation in space.

The nuclear detection satellites were to help police the partial nuclear test ban treaty signed in 1963 by the United States, Russia and more than 100 other nations. The pact prohibits nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water or in space, but allows underground detonations.

If a nation hoped to violate the treaty without detection, the best bet presumably would be to pack a bomb in a rocket and explode it millions of miles in space, where natural radiation is already present.

A bomb triggered in the vacuum of space would also not generate the customary fireball with its 10-million-degree heat or make a mushroom cloud. These effects near earth are the result of a bomb's interaction with elements in the atmosphere.

Final Respects Paid to Adenauer

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — This Rhine River city was somber in spring sunshine today as Germans and leaders of the Western world attended a funeral Mass for former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Inside Cologne Cathedral were 2,000 invited guests, including President Johnson, President Charles de Gaulle of France and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain. Later the leaders will discuss common problems with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger.

Joseph Cardinal Frings, 80-year-old friend of Adenauer, said in a brief funeral sermon that "the German nation will mourn him as it would a father."

Formal eulogies were pronounced earlier at Bonn in a ceremony in the Bundestag — Parliament — by German leaders. The Mass at the 718-year-old cathedral was the last public service for Adenauer, who died last Wednesday at the age of 91.

A private family service in the little Waldfriedhof — forest cemetery — in Rhoendorf, his home town, is the last rite for the man who led postwar Germany from ignominious defeat to a respected place in the community of nations.

Johnson, in a slow-moving limousine, was among the first chiefs of state to reach the cathedral.

Before the altar rail, flanked by a military honor guard of eight generals and admirals, rested the coffin of Adenauer.

In Bonn, police took three students into custody at Bonn university. The three carried placards, including one saying: "A people mourns for a single man. Who mourns for a whole people? 400,000 murdered people in Vietnam are waiting for their funeral Mass."

Johnson and De Gaulle talked together for 10 minutes at a luncheon given by President Heinrich Luebke but the meeting apparently was confined to civilities.

Bid to Delay Toll Roads Defeated

Percy Image Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois is emerging among Republicans as a man who could carry the credentials of a Vietnam peace campaigner into a race for the White House.

Percy heavily underscored in recent days his differences with President Johnson's war policy and; by implication, with Republicans who endorse that policy—including other GOP leaders now considered prospects for the presidential nomination.

He has called for a stepped-up peace effort, emphasizing Asian initiative, for an end to military escalation, and for greater restraint in American bombing of North Vietnam.

At the annual meeting Monday of The Associated Press, he registered a "strong dissent" over U.S. bombing of airfields in the Communist North.

Percy has not advocated military withdrawal, nor has he suggested a U.S. halt in bombing of North Vietnam without some peace move by the Communists.

At the same time, Percy has carved a leading GOP role on a major domestic issue looming for 1968: the critical problems facing American cities.

He won unanimous sponsorship of his 35 Republican Senate colleagues for his bill to promote home ownership as a step toward improving life in the slums.

Vietnam and urban turmoil could be the two key issues in the next presidential campaign. Percy has said repeatedly he is not a candidate, but has not flatly ruled himself out of that campaign.

"I cannot foresee any circumstances under which I would be compelled to be a candidate," he said Sunday.

For three days now, Percy has been elaborating his Viet-

CIA May Be Linked To Probe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans States Item said today in a copyrighted story there is mounting evidence of Central Intelligence Agency links in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's Kennedy assassination probe.

"At least one Garrison probe figure intends to use CIA connections as part of his defense," the newspaper said.

The story said "still others linked to the Garrison investigation have been named as acting for the supersecret espionage organization - as informers, as couriers and munitions carriers."

Gordon Novel, the 29-year-old former French Quarter bar owner who is fighting extradition from Ohio to Louisiana, was named as having the strongest CIA ties.

The newspaper said Novel told intimates "he was a CIA operative and will use this role to battle Garrison's charges."

Novel is free on $10,000 bond in Columbus, Ohio after his arrest on a Louisiana warrant charging that he helped plan the burglary of an oil-field explosive bunker near Houma in 1941.

Council Formed to Give Aid to Area Handicapped

A Bootheel citizen's vocational rehabilitation council whose purpose will be to help draft a master plan for the extension and expansion of services to the handicapped was formed at a meeting Monday night at the El Capri. Twenty attended.

The council consists of laymen who will attempt to determine the number and classification of handicapped persons. They will study existing facilities for them and report their findings to the statewide planning staff in Jefferson City.

Donald Bohannon, is chairman of the council. The council area is formed along lines established by the regional planning commission. It includes Scott, Stoddard, New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

In Missouri vocational rehabilitation is administered by two agencies: The vocational rehabilitation division of the state department of education and the bureau for the blind of the state welfare department, Dick Simpson, Jefferson City, planning assistant for rural rehabilitation needs, explained.

Simpson and Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, conducted the meeting to form the council.

Bill Morgan, Kennett, was appointed vice chairman of the council.

Simpson and Gann have met with community leaders in the state to form citizens councils for three months. The establishment of the councils is a first step to gather more information on the needs of the handicapped.

The councils will conduct studies and report vocational needs to a 54-member advisory board in Jefferson City, which will deal with them.

Errol K. Gann, Jefferson City, planning assistant for urban rehabilitation needs, helped residents form a bootheel council to promote vocational rehabilitation Monday night at the El Capri.

The steps in vocational rehabilitation are: diagnosis, evaluation, treatment, training, job placement and follow-up, Simpson said.

It is estimated that for every successful rehabilitation made in the state, four persons go unattended, Simpson said. Of the 11,000 persons who came for help last year, 3,600 were rehabilitated, he noted.

Mann presented slides showing success stories throughout the state of handicapped persons, who have been rehabilitated.

The council is expected to meet at least twice a year. It will be about two months before the state planning staff will be ready to ask questions about area problems, Simpson said.

The council will attempt to answer questions concerning the blind, heart, cancer and stroke patients, neurologically impaired persons, mentally ill, the aging, public offenders, deaf and hard of hearing persons, mentally retarded and mentally defective persons with behaviorial disorder and the economically and socially deprived.

Bill Still Lacks Full Support

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House defeated a move today that would have delayed Missouri action in the toll road area until next year.

The House had just re-opened debate on Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' embattled toll road bill when Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs, offered a substitute plan.

It called for a 15-member commission to study feasibility of toll roads in Missouri and how to finance them. The commission would report to the legislature by Feb. 1, 1968 and would, Sheehan said, allow the state to approach the toll road problem sanely.

Rep. Robert E. Young, R-Carthage opposed it. He said Kansas already has a plan to build a toll road from Kansas City south to Galena, Kan.

And the bill's sponsor, Rep. Ruben Schapeler, D-Bates County, reported a financial adviser said Monday the Kansas plan would cost too much to make it feasible.

Sheehan's amendment was defeated 51-105 but the vote indicated the Democratic governor didn't have solid backing from the majority Democrats.

The majority Democrats scheduled a presession caucus, presumably to lay strategy for the battle to preserve the Hearnes version of the bill without crippling amendments.

Three days last week the House wrangled over the bill, adding restrictive amendments when the governor wasn't looking and then taking them off under the lash of his pressure.

State Education Needs Outlined to 600

The needs for school reorganization and a statewide equalization program to improve the quality of education in Missouri were presented at a regional meeting sponsored by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation at the high school cafetorium Monday night.

Arthur L. Summers of the state department of education in Jefferson City and Fred Morrow, superintendent of Poplar Bluff schools, explained the recommendations of the Missouri governor's conference on education. About 600 persons attended.

The governor's conference grew out of a report done the Academy for Educational Development, Inc., an educational research firm. Its report, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," is critical of the educational facilities and policies in the state.

Summers, speaking on "State Master Plan for School Reorganization and Junior College Districts," noted that an education must include more than the traditional "three r's". Education must be geared for all ages and must be designed to meet the needs of modern society, he said.

The trend in Missouri, as in the rest of the country, is toward consolidation of school districts to provide better and more economical education, Summers said.

In Missouri the number of school districts has decreased 75 per cent in 31 years, and progress has been greatest since the passage of the reorganization law by the legislature in 1948, he pointed out.

In 1948 more than 8,000 school districts existed in Missouri; there are now 840. Some districts have been reorganized as many as five times, Summers added.

Studies have revealed the weakness of the small school district. Two factors must be considered in determining boundaries of the district: financial and human resources, he said.

"There is only so much local wealth in an area, but districts can be merged to provide a broad tax base, which provides a more comprehensive program of education," he explained.

The governor's conference recommended that the urban-suburban district have 1,000-1,500 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12; the recommendation for outstate districts is 500-750 pupils enrolled in grades 9-12. Southeast Missouri districts do not meet these standards, Summers said.

Summers is a member of the Great Plains School District Reorganization Project. The project has four states — Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota -- cooperating to study school district structure and reorganization.

Morrow explained some of the recommendations of the governor's conference for an equalization program in Missouri.

The conference recommended a comprehensive high school building program from a master plan devised by the state department of education. Apportionment of state funds based on the financial needs of the district would pay for new schools and for schools already built. This plan would help districts that lack an adequate bonding capacity.

The equalization program would help employ regular teachers, special education teachers and teacher-aides and pay part of the cost for purchasing books and equipment.

Another benefit of the program would be financing of vocational-technical education. Morrow said that money is probably being wasted on such programs and that studies should be made to determine what types of vocational-technical education are needed in a district.

For junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools the conference report recommended that 50 per cent of the financing be provided by the state and 50 per cent by the district.

Not every district would be able to pay its share because of the lack of wealth. However, some districts are able to pay more than the 50 per cent local financing and would be able to make up the deficit of the poorer districts. This is the basis of the proposed equalization program, whereby wealthier districts contribute tax dollars to the poorer districts.

Other recommendations included a reduction of the two-thirds majority needed for passage of a bond issue to a simple majority, a change in the 10 per cent bond indebtedness of the district, an increase from 180 to 200 days as the minimum requirement for school attendance each year and a change in the tax levy election law.

Presently if a proposed tax levy increase is defeated, the levy reverts back to the state minimum requirement of $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation. The conference recommended that the current levy be retained if the proposed increase were defeated.

Morrow said that other revenues must be found besides the property tax. Property owners already pay enough tax on their property, he said. He also advised that money for building construction no longer be taken out of the general revenue fund, which the state needs for other purposes.

Prior to the addresses a slide presentation, "Looking Ahead to Better Education in Missouri," prepared by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, was shown.

The film pointed out that education in Missouri leaves much to be desired. In 1965 Missouri was ranked 12th in the nation in per capita income but ranked 47th in proportion of income spent on education.

The failure to provide enough money for education has made itself felt. Missouri dropped to 17th in the nation in per capita income in 1966, ranking 48th in the proportion of income spent on education.

The increasing mobility rate in the nation makes inadequate education a national problem. Because of the movements of families from one school district, county or state to another, a pupil whose education was inferior, where he formerly lived becomes the problem of his new school district.

Metropolitan areas have difficulty getting enough teachers and adequate facilities; rural areas have difficulty providing top quality education for a diminishing population.

Although there is a trend toward reorganization in Missouri, a waste continues in numerous faculty members teaching a small number of pupils in areas where population is decreasing. This waste of money results in low teacher salaries. Missouri pays only 90 per cent of the national average for teacher salaries.

The increasing need for physical facilities can be met by a broader distribution of the tax dollar. The district should be small enough to provide communication between school administrators and the population and large enough to eliminate tax dollar waste.

Because of the decline in farm employment, schools must prepare many rural youths for

U.S. Warplanes Strike Closest Yet to Hanoi

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes pounded relentlessly at prime targets in North Vietnam today, hitting again inside the port city of Haiphong and closer than ever before to the center of the Communist capital of Hanoi.

The new strikes against North Vietnam's two major cities came within 24 hours of the first attacks of the war on MIG airfields in North Vietnam.

The stepup in the air was accompanied by a jump in American plane losses. Four U.S. planes were reported lost over the North — three Monday and one today. American pilots reported shooting down two Communist MIG17s Monday.

The U.S. losses announced today brought the total American planes reported lost over the North to 514.

A Peking broadcast said two U.S. fighters were shot down Monday in a dogfight just over the border of Red China from North Vietnam, but a U.S. spokesman denied it. He said, "I can find no report that would even remotely relate to this."

The Soviet news agency Tass said Hanoi reported a total of 15 U.S. planes shot down today -- three at Hanoi and 12 over Haiphong. It said one American pilot was captured.

Saigon announcements were limited to the one plane. The record loss over North Vietnam in a single day was eight planes shot down last Dec. 2.

Only sporadic fighting was reported in the ground war in South Vietnam. Scattered enemy resistance was encountered in Operation Manhattan in War Zone C northwest of Saigon which involves about 20,000 U.S. troops. Spokesmen said 18 enemy had been killed since the operation began Sunday. American losses were put at 2 killed and 14 wounded.

A new U.S. Marine operation was announced in the menaced northern part of South Vietnam. Called Operation Shawnee, it began Saturday and so far 27 of the enemy have been killed, spokesmen said. Four Marines were reported wounded.

On the U.S. political side in Saigon, there was a change of command with the departure of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and the arrival a few hours later of his successor, Ellsworth Bunker. Bunker said President Johnson had asked him to renew the U.S. pledge "to support the true revolutio of the Vietnamese people."

The accelerating air war over North Vietnam after weeks of bad weather included two strikes this morning on the fringes of Hanoi.

One strike by U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief pilots hit a railroad repair yard which the American command said was 2¼ miles east-northeast of the center of the city and across the Red River from the capital's most densely populated section. The second raid, also by Thunderchiefs, was made on an electrical transformer site seven miles north of the city.

An American spokesman said the raid on the railroad repair yard was the closest ever made to Hanoi but the target "does not appear to be in the city limits."

The previous closest strike to Hanoi were on an oil storage area 2.5 to 3 miles north of the city last summer.

Pilots reported encountering MIGs, surface-to-air missiles and heavy antiaircraft fire over both targets in the Hanoi area.

While the Air Force fliers were going after the targets near Hanoi, Navy pilots from the carriers Bon Homme Richard and Kitty Hawk attacked a cement plant U.S. spokesmen said was 1.1 miles west of the center of the city of Haiphong.

A Navy officer said the plant was adjacent to the thermal power plant Navy planes attacked last Thursday in the first raid inside the city limits of the big port.

Other Navy fliers hit an ammunition depot four miles south of Haiphong and an oil storage center about 2½ miles north of the city, the spokesmen said, but they had no details on these raids.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes flew 88 missions against North Vietnam Monday, and from early indications followed up with that many or more today.

As a parish priest, he brought the first county agent to southeast Missouri. He taught farmers how to raise chickens and aided by a county agent planted high-grade corn near Chester, Ill., on an island in the middle of the Mississippi River.

Monsignor Hildner was a founder of the national Catholic rural life conference four decades ago.

Dr. John C. Weaver spoke of the broad functions of the University of Missouri in his inaugural speech at Columbia as 14th president of the institution.

This was a wise emphasis because part of his task is to educate Missourians of the broad range of service performed by the University.

It is notable that he didn't neglect the human values of higher education:

"No human institution has more reason than an educational institution to deny or stoutly resist any philosophy which would submerge the paramount importance of the individual. Knowledge can only be held and ultimate wisdom can only come to individual minds."

Even though the University is growing larger Dr. Weaver held as "the most fundamental expectation" that "ways can be found to make education a warmly human experience for individual people, one by one."

One of the major sources of student unrest at the University of California at Berkeley has been due to sheer size - the student feeling that he had lost identity in a mechanical educational process.

There are many definitions of the goals of education.

Some are false at least to a degree.

"To make a person feel comfortable in the universe."

"The true object of education is to train one to think clearly and rightly."

It is not enough to teach a student how to best perform any task - whether it be practice of law, performing a surgical operation or publishing a newspaper - because methods change. He must learn to be flexible, how to adapt to change and where to obtain accurate information. His challenge is one of constant adaption. Given a taste of learning, he must eagerly continue the process or the world will pass him by.

These goals have been obscured in a growing emphasis on tests, diplomas and degrees. Human values have been either ignored or submerged.

Clear thinking is an individual responsibility. It never was more needed and never more neglected.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SOVIET TV OWNERS ARISE IN INDIGNATION

Sometimes when you get the bill for the repairs of the TV set, you feel like Wells Fargo did when some baddie made off with another payroll. But you really must, as the saying goes, count your blessings.

We knock television quite a bit in these United States. We call it the "boob tube" and the eye to "a vast wasteland" and are often convinced that the people who write the commercials are congenital idiots who, in addition to their other problems, don't know an adverb from a preposition.

In the Soviet Union, they have television and refer to it as "the blue screen - that is, when the set is working. And if it isn't, citizen rights to TV repairs are protected by the Ministry of Communications; but it just doesn't work out that way. They have a bureau or a ministry or an agency for everything over there and, considering the Soviet complaints about TV repair we hear of lately, we Americans ought to make much more noise about losing Freedoms to an ever-expanding, bureaucratic, over-centralized federal government which wants to do everything for us.

Now some people might say that TV repair in Russia is a petty case in point, but let them read on to determine if it isn't symbolic of the virtues of our system and the unworkability and tyranny of the Red way of doing things.

Moscow has a weekly newspaper called "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" and it published an article by Comrade writer V. Matveiev entitled "Television Service Problems." And they got 'em.

Matveiev says millions of TV owners ("these expensive gadgets") are compelled to get out the overhaul warranty the day they buy their set and have to use up their spare time going to the Moscow Television Trust for repairs. It all sounds terribly trying, according to Matveiev.

He says the story of Comrade Benenson ought to receive particular attention from the Ministry of Communication and the Television Trust.

Benenson called in TV Technician Osipov from Repair Shop 24 (they have numbers for everything). After Osipov operated, Benenson sat down to watch that provocative show "Seminars for Corn Growers" and waited for picture and sound, none of which the set could deliver. However, clouds of smoke did emanate from the set's complex innards. Benenson called Repair Shop 24 again and received the services of Technician Comrade Zalkind who discovered a "do-it-yourself" safety device in the set, and promptly accused it of burning out the power transformer and forever ending the short, unhappy life of the picture tube.

After having missed the monumentally entertaining corn grower's seminar, plus "Tales by Grandmother Television" and a sports show, Benenson sat down and wrote a letter to the Ministry of Communications. His request was patently bourgeois: he wanted the overhaul performed at the expense of the repair shop which put that "safety device" in the set in the first place.

Evidently, the Ministry passed the buck to Television Trust because T.T. wrote a letter to Benenson saying it was he and not Television Repair Shop 24 who bore responsibility for installing the offending safety bug.

Benenson told "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" that the charge was nonsense "as I know nothing about the inside of a TV set and never open mine. . .It is difficult for me to understand why I cannot get any protection of my rights from the Ministry of Communications. Instead I am accused of a swindle."

With that, Comrade Matveiev polished off one case and launched into another even more distressing:

"The author (of the complaining letter) is Leybutin; he is an ordinary Moscovite and a TV set owner." He called a technician from the Ostankinskaia Street repair shop four times. A technician or two would come, do something, take two or three rubles ($2.22 or $3.33) and depart, leaving behind a set that wouldn't work.

"The last time," Comrade Leybutin wrote, "they said the picture tube had to be checked. They took out the block and left it on the table. The next day I took time off from my work, spent two hours in bringing the mechanism to the atelier (workshop), and three days later went back to pick it up. They refused to take into account the amounts paid by me for previous overhauls and would not even check their records."

Leybutin might have been hoping for a break in this storm of heartless bureaucracy, but it wasn't to be. The next day a technician showed up, put in the picture tube and changed another tube. Two days later another tube burned out.

The cycle is now apparently complete," he complained in his letter to "Ekonomicheskaia gazeta", "the set will have to be taken to the atelier all over again, which will probably cost another ten rubles ($11.11). . . .

Writer Matveiev said it was his opinion that the optimism of the Ministry of Communications would disappear completely if it knew about still another case; that of Comrade Prikhodko of Krasnopresensky Raion. Prikhodko was more than disappointed with his "Temp-6" TV set. The brand name is open to all kinds of interpretation, one being that it works temporarily and then only for six minutes. This interpretation is not nearly as sarcastic as it seems, for note writer Matveiev's comment: "The plant and TV repair shop workers run from (Prikhodko) like the devil from frankincense."

We don't know if Comrade Prikhodko ever solved his problem, for we left him shortly after he was charged two rubles for a service call during which the mechanic "dusted the inside of the set, installed a safety device, soldered a contact, calculated his fee" and left. One week later, the set was out of order again.

Writer Matveiev says these are only some of the cases and if there are millions of them, they must reflect the real situation "which the Ministry of Communications refuses to recognize."

TV set owners of America, be thankful.

NEW YORK (AP) —Jumping to conclusions:

If zoo gorillas were fed the same diet that most teen-age kids choose, they'd never grow to maturity.

The husbandly chore that many men find most distasteful is picking up beauty aids for their wife at the drug store.

Your nerves are in pretty good shape if you can let a telephone go on ringing simply because you don't feel like talking over one at the moment. The average person is a compulsive telephone answerer. He is afraid not to pick up the receiver for fear he will miss an important message, although the chances of his doing so are slim. Opportunity may knock on a man's door but once—but his telephone wil ring 10,000 times.

We'll find it easier to believe in a better world whenever television puts on a successful soap opera about characters who lead happy lives. As it is now, many women who watch these shows feel frustrated because their own lives are so normal they are bored to tears.

The chances are one in five that the next fellow you meet will have a good luck silver dollar in his pocket or in a drawer at home —and that's one reason they are becoming so scarce.

It's generally safe to lend money to a man who returns a ball point pen he has borrowed from you.

People who are content to drink hot coffee from paper cups regularly probably never expected very much from life anyway.

In the United States today, every minute of every day, an automobile is stolen. Last year half a million Americans found themselves the victims of auto theft -- one of the country's most frequent, expensive and serious crimes.

Auto thefts have increased more than 60 per cent since 1960, more than double the percentage increase in auto registrations. At the present rate, more than a million cars a year will be stolen by the 1970's.

Why do these auto thefts occur? What can be done to combat the auto theft problem? Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, states that one major factor in car theft is the failure of owners to lock their own automobiles. He points out that 8 out of 10 cars stolen are unlocked and that 4 out of 10 cars stolen have the keys in the ignition.

"The 'key' in combating the auto theft problem is literally in the hands of the individual citizen," Colonel Hockaday declared. "By forming the simple habit of removing the keys from the ignition and locking the automobile when he leaves it, the probability that his car will be stolen decreases about 50 per cent.

"An unlocked parked car with the keys in the ignition is an open invitation to the auto theft. By simply removing your keys and locking the car, you help remove the invitation," he concluded.

TOO MUCH FOR TOO MANY

Last spring's jump in food prices, as is the case with every inflationary price rise, set off the usual hunt for a scapegoat. To many, the logical culprit could be found at the beginning of the food pipeline -- the farmer. But the farmer, far from being a culprit, is a victim of inflation to a greater extent than most other segments of the country.

Prices received by farmers for all products in 1965 were nearly 9 per cent below the average for 1947-49. During the same period, weekly wage rates to labor have gone up 107 per cent. Things farmers bought rose in price by 28.3 per cent.

No, the farmer is not to blame for inflation. Inflation is the result of too many people asking too much from their government, and the government trying to provide too many "free" services and handouts. In defending the farmer, Farm Journal magazine says, "...we suggest that they, the Secretary of Agriculture, the President, the rest of his administration -- and Congress - concern themselves more with the real cause of inflation: government spending and expansionary fiscal policies. Let's have less wailing about food prices and some real shouting about that."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Judging by the mail that has been flooding both congress and this newspaper office, the issue of Doddism is much broader than that of Tom Dodd himself.

The public is fed up with having one law for it and another law for congress. People figure that the men who write the laws should not only know them but live up to them as conscientiously as those who don't write them but must obey them.

The case of Sen. Dodd is a very important example. The senate is getting awfully tired of hearing about this case and would like to forget it. Senators have been hoping against hope that he would resign. But the public is not tired and will probably keep pouring on the heat, not only regarding Dodd but the whole question of ethical conduct. The least that the public wants is observance of the law; and, anyway you look at it, Dodd has violated the law in at least five instances as follows:

1. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act, Section 658C of the 1953 supplement to the general statutes states: "the payments, expenditures, promises and liabilities which any candidate for senator of the United States may make or incur, directly or indirectly, in aid of his nomination or election or both, shall not exceed one - third of the salary of said office for one year."

Dodd's salary as senator for one year is $30,000. In 1963 alone, which was not an election year, he raised $54,663.

Dodd is a lawyer. He has practiced law in Connecticut most of his life, having been a U. S. Attorney, a congressman and a senator. Yet he wantonly and knowingly violated the election laws of Connecticut. Were he an ordinary citizen he would be prosecuted and put in jail.

REWARD FOR FAVORS

2. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act also forbids the acceptance of donations and favors from corporations on penalty of $1,000 fine or one year in jail or both. Dodd received such favors as the loan of an Oldsmobile for three years, countless free airplane trips, plus donations from Connecticut insurance companies, gun manufacturers, and many other firms for which he did favors.

3. It is against the federal law for a member of congress to seek favors for anyone from the federal government in return for monetary or material reward. Dodd performed a long list of favors already published in this column, sustained by sworn testimony, and too numerous to mention here.

4. The Federal Corrupt Practices Act forbids any candidate to receive contributions from a corporation. Dodd received $18,000 from the International Latex Company, which his former employees testified was to secure an ambassadorship for Abe Spanel, chairman of Latex. The latter point was denied by Dodd, but the first point, namely the receipt of funds from a corporation, was not denied.

5. It is specifically against the law to use campaign funds for personal expenses unless they are listed as personal income, and taxes paid thereon. Dodd used most of the $173,000 he collected at testimonial and campaign dinners for his own use, and he paid no taxes on it.

What the American people will be watching in the Dodd case and other cases of unethical congressional conduct is whether there is going to be one standard of enforcement for the congressmen who make the laws and another standard of enforcement for other people who don't write them but have to obey them.

SUMMER JOBS NEEDED

The White House is worried that this summer may be as long, hot and frustrating as the last one unless private employers get solidly behind the President's youth opportunity campaign for vacation jobs for students.

Approximately 13 million youngsters between 16 and 21 will soon be seeking summer work, many so they can return to school in September. And at least two million will be out of luck unless local employers do their best to help.

Vice President Humphrey, chairman of the job campaign, with Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, spearheaded the employment of one million youngsters in the summer of 1965 and 1,250,000 last summer. This year Humphrey and Wirtz started a month early in order to make a better record.

To this end, acting Commerce Secretary A. B. Trowbridge has sent an open letter to 900,000 employers, and within two weeks had received more than 10,000 replies promising cooperation. Among the employers who are doing their bit are Jones and Laughlin Steel of Pittsburgh, who hired 1,200 extra personnel from student ranks last summer; Dayco of Dayton, Ohio, 300; and General Telephone of Fort Wayne, Ind., 100.

Barring a maximum national effort, however, the problem will be greater than last year, when about one out of ten young white people seeking jobs, and one out of four Negro students, were out of work and on the streets all summer.

Vice President Humphrey has reminded summer jobs applicants in a booklet of employment tips that they can help themselves by (1) Talking to their school counselor; (2) Carrying social security and draft cards, a work permit and personal references; and (3) "Be clean and dress neat, be honest and polite."

"Play it cool," suggests the VP. "After work, you can wear mod clothes and swing!"

Bang went prospects for oil in Swamp East Mo., for at least another thousand years. Radio says shale in the Rockies contains three times the known reserve of the entire world. It's no wonder our boys in Jeff City passed a law to block production in Mo. that could have worked a hardship on the monopoly. Like the Ozark minerals, 85% of this shale land belongs to Unk and the prospects are that no royalties will go to prior landowners, parks. You see, a few short years ago Unk (the taxpayers) put up the dough to build two pilot plants to invent a process for extracting oil from shale. The news leaked out that they made gasoline for 12 1/2¢ per gallon. It was also reported the monopoly ask for the rights to use the process and lease shale lands. Evidently there was a compromise. The plants was shut down and by this date maybe rotted down. Possibly some top hat boys feel they may get flung out of office in the near future and should get theirs now while the getting is good. H.L. Hunt Says

ACTIVATE ONE CONVERT A WEEK

The concept of government by the people, a sacred principle for generations in this Nation, is dealt with very harshly by the present Electoral College System. Incredible as it may seem, the people of 39 States can be disfranchised by the other 11 States which contain the largest cities. These 11 States, with their big cities, can elect a President even if he lost each of the other 39 States 5 to 1 or more. Twenty - two of the 32 Presidents who have been elected to office were from only four States.

A vast number of citizens earnestly desire this Reform. If two million of them would start today and activate one other in a week who would in turn activate another in a week, at the end of one week there would be four million activists; in two weeks there would be eight million; in three weeks 6 million; in four weeks 32 million, and in five weeks 64 million. They need only activate: Converts are awaiting.

If one fails his weekly mission his clergyman, a friend among educators or a "good mixer" may bring up the average by activating 10 or more that week. The Crusade could become enjoyable and irresistible. This Reform has been under way for many years, but whether or not it is accomplished is dependent upon people like you. For 15 years able Statesmen and good organizations have started, but when the movement failed to reach Crusade proportions nothing happened, and this much-desired Reform fell by the wayside. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D. C.: -- While coveys of Congressmen are highballing around town on the cocktail circuit, railroad and labor leaders are on a collision course. There's no progress in the crisis.

So, truly knowledgeable insiders are flatly predicting a 10 - day railroad strike beginning at 12:01 May 3 on 200 Class A roads despite the President's warning that "many terrible consequences will flow" from such a nationwide stoppage.

And, lest we forget, this is not merely a matter of fact freight and haulage of vital war materiel. There can be even graver consequences for the undisturbed.

Commuter trains funneling into hundreds of major cities from Jamaica Bay to San Francisco Bay also will be paralyzed. Suburbia, take notice.

"Let's face it," said a grim spokesman for the unruffled Roy Siemiller, AFL - CIO machinists leader, who through this column has been warning of a coast - to - coast stoppage since last December, "there will be a strike unless we get the settlement we seek from the lines.

"We have the right to strike and we will until it becomes illegal. That will take a new law. We'll fight it. We already are battling it.

"We've asked our 1900 lodges to contact their Senators and Representatives. We'll urge our Congressional friends to demand a roll call so those who vote for compulsory arbitration will have to stand up and be counted".

Even grimmer is the warning of the Senate's dean of labor experts, Wayne Morse, who has been talking to President Johnson.

"There's only a 50 - 50 chance we will get a law through, anyway," opined Morse, quite sadly, reminding us that the nation could not take a 48-hour rail stoppage in this day of Vietnam.

"And if the Congress does enact such a law, it will take them at least 10 days to pass it. But they can't count on me. I'll vote against compulsory arbitration. It's not good for labor. It's not good for industry.

"We're finished with economic freedom if we get compulsory collective bargaining".

Those who know R. Siemiller always take his word as a prediction. His soft voice has a built - in gentle chuckle which dilutes the force of what he asserts. And he is talking strike for many reasons -- all inherent on other storm fronts.

One reason unknown to the public is that this, for the moment, is the show of Machinists' vice - president Joe Ramsey who ran the airline strike. "Joe" is set to retire next July 23rd. This is his last go - round. He is determined to skyrocket the $3.05 hourly rate of skilled railroad shop machinists -- a figure as much as $1.50 under other prevailing rates, according to the million - member International Assn. of Machinists.

Siemiller is backing up his departing colleague, whose place in the union's railroad section he will take.

Both were angered by the President's Emergency Board recommendation for a job evaluation study, so it could be determined whether the skilled people deserve to get extra pay.

Retorts the union, the hell with job evaluation. We have been opposed to it for years.

Siemiller and Ramsey want more money for their men now -- without any job analyses and work tests. And they want more than the other on - train unions have agreed to take.

So the railroads' spokesman, old "Doc" Wolfe, says the lines just can't do that, since 70 per cent of the 24 railroad unions have agreed to settle for a five per cent raise.

Siemiller -- now easily more militant than Walter Reuther and the shades of Mike Quill wrapped into one -- replies with a threat to walk out that May night -- unless his people in the railroad shops get seven per cent and special pay for the skilled men.

That's it. That's the deadlock.

As for the threat of Congressional action -- spontaneous and unrehearsed because there is no strike legislation -- the union will fight it for many reasons including the fear of mass firings. Some 17,000 locomotive firemen lost their jobs after Congress passed a compulsory arbitration law during the Kennedy regime back in '63.

So, says Siemiller, "we'll strike the nation's railroads right after midnight May 3. You can say that and be right."

If the shop crafts do hit, it will be the first time in 45 years. But Siemiller never has hesitated to stop history's high-ball express.

Dr. John C. Weaver spoke of the broad functions of the University of Missouri in his inaugural speech at Columbia as 14th president of the institution.

This was a wise emphasis because part of his task is to educate Missourians of the broad range of service performed by the University.

It is notable that he didn't neglect the human values of higher education:

"No human institution has more reason than an educational institution to deny or stoutly resist any philosophy which would submerge the paramount importance of the individual. Knowledge can only be held and ultimate wisdom can only come to individual minds."

Even though the University is growing larger Dr. Weaver held as "the most fundamental expectation" that "ways can be found to make education a warmly human experience for individual people, one by one."

One of the major sources of student unrest at the University of California at Berkeley has been due to sheer size - the student feeling that he had lost identity in a mechanical educational process.

There are many definitions of the goals of education.

Some are false at least to a degree.

"To make a person feel comfortable in the universe."

"The true object of education is to train one to think clearly and rightly."

It is not enough to teach a student how to best perform any task - whether it be practice of law, performing a surgical operation or publishing a newspaper - because methods change. He must learn to be flexible, how to adapt to change and where to obtain accurate information. His challenge is one of constant adaption. Given a taste of learning, he must eagerly continue the process or the world will pass him by.

These goals have been obscured in a growing emphasis on tests, diplomas and degrees. Human values have been either ignored or submerged.

Clear thinking is an individual responsibility. It never was more needed and never more neglected.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

SOVIET TV OWNERS ARISE IN INDIGNATION

Sometimes when you get the bill for the repairs of the TV set, you feel like Wells Fargo did when some baddie made off with another payroll. But you really must, as the saying goes, count your blessings.

We knock television quite a bit in these United States. We call it the "boob tube" and the eye to "a vast wasteland" and are often convinced that the people who write the commercials are congenital idiots who, in addition to their other problems, don't know an adverb from a preposition.

In the Soviet Union, they have television and refer to it as "the blue screen - that is, when the set is working. And if it isn't, citizen rights to TV repairs are protected by the Ministry of Communications; but it just doesn't work out that way. They have a bureau or a ministry or an agency for everything over there and, considering the Soviet complaints about TV repair we hear of lately, we Americans ought to make much more noise about losing Freedoms to an ever-expanding, bureaucratic, over-centralized federal government which wants to do everything for us.

Now some people might say that TV repair in Russia is a petty case in point, but let them read on to determine if it isn't symbolic of the virtues of our system and the unworkability and tyranny of the Red way of doing things.

Moscow has a weekly newspaper called "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" and it published an article by Comrade writer V. Matveiev entitled "Television Service Problems." And they got 'em.

Matveiev says millions of TV owners ("these expensive gadgets") are compelled to get out the overhaul warranty the day they buy their set and have to use up their spare time going to the Moscow Television Trust for repairs. It all sounds terribly trying, according to Matveiev.

He says the story of Comrade Benenson ought to receive particular attention from the Ministry of Communication and the Television Trust.

Benenson called in TV Technician Osipov from Repair Shop 24 (they have numbers for everything). After Osipov operated, Benenson sat down to watch that provocative show "Seminars for Corn Growers" and waited for picture and sound, none of which the set could deliver. However, clouds of smoke did emanate from the set's complex innards. Benenson called Repair Shop 24 again and received the services of Technician Comrade Zalkind who discovered a "do-it-yourself" safety device in the set, and promptly accused it of burning out the power transformer and forever ending the short, unhappy life of the picture tube.

After having missed the monumentally entertaining corn grower's seminar, plus "Tales by Grandmother Television" and a sports show, Benenson sat down and wrote a letter to the Ministry of Communications. His request was patently bourgeois: he wanted the overhaul performed at the expense of the repair shop which put that "safety device" in the set in the first place.

Evidently, the Ministry passed the buck to Television Trust because T.T. wrote a letter to Benenson saying it was he and not Television Repair Shop 24 who bore responsibility for installing the offending safety bug.

Benenson told "Ekonomicheskaia gaseta" that the charge was nonsense "as I know nothing about the inside of a TV set and never open mine. . .It is difficult for me to understand why I cannot get any protection of my rights from the Ministry of Communications. Instead I am accused of a swindle."

With that, Comrade Matveiev polished off one case and launched into another even more distressing:

"The author (of the complaining letter) is Leybutin; he is an ordinary Moscovite and a TV set owner." He called a technician from the Ostankinskaia Street repair shop four times. A technician or two would come, do something, take two or three rubles ($2.22 or $3.33) and depart, leaving behind a set that wouldn't work.

"The last time," Comrade Leybutin wrote, "they said the picture tube had to be checked. They took out the block and left it on the table. The next day I took time off from my work, spent two hours in bringing the mechanism to the atelier (workshop), and three days later went back to pick it up. They refused to take into account the amounts paid by me for previous overhauls and would not even check their records."

Leybutin might have been hoping for a break in this storm of heartless bureaucracy, but it wasn't to be. The next day a technician showed up, put in the picture tube and changed another tube. Two days later another tube burned out.

The cycle is now apparently complete," he complained in his letter to "Ekonomicheskaia gazeta", "the set will have to be taken to the atelier all over again, which will probably cost another ten rubles ($11.11). . . .

Writer Matveiev said it was his opinion that the optimism of the Ministry of Communications would disappear completely if it knew about still another case; that of Comrade Prikhodko of Krasnopresensky Raion. Prikhodko was more than disappointed with his "T-emp-6" TV set. The brand name is open to all kinds of interpretation, one being that it works temporarily and then only for six minutes. This interpretation is not nearly as sarcastic as it seems, for note writer Matveiev's comment: "The plant and TV repair shop workers run from (Prikhodko) like the devil from frankincense."

We don't know if Comrade Prikhodko ever solved his problem, for we left him shortly after he was charged two rubles for a service call during which the mechanic "dusted the inside of the set, installed a safety device, soldered a contact, calculated his fee" and left. One week later, the set was out of order again.

Writer Matveiev says these are only some of the cases and if there are millions of them, they must reflect the real situation "which the Ministry of Communications refuses to recognize."

TV set owners of America, be thankful.

He points out that 8 out of 10 cars stolen are unlocked and that 4 out of 10 cars stolen have the keys in the ignition.

"The 'key' in combating the auto theft problem is literally in the hands of the individual citizen," Colonel Hockaday declared. "By forming the simple habit of removing the keys from the ignition and locking the automobile when he leaves it, the probability that his car will be stolen decreases about 50 per cent.

"An unlocked parked car with the keys in the ignition is an open invitation to the auto theft. By simply removing your keys and locking the car, you help remove the invitation," he concluded.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

A young writer cornered Somerset Maugham at a cocktail party and said, "I have just written a novel but I haven't been able to come up with a suitable title. Could you help me?"

"Are there any drums in it? Maugham asked.

"No sir, it is not that kind of a book," the young man replied.

"Are there any bugles in it?"

"No sir."

"Then call it 'No Drums. No Bugles'."

TOO MUCH FOR TOO MANY

Last spring's jump in food prices, as is the case with every inflationary price rise, set off the usual hunt for a scapegoat. To many, the logical culprit could be found at the beginning of the food pipeline -- the farmer. But the farmer, far from being a culprit, is a victim of inflation to a greater extent than most other segments of the country.

Prices received by farmers for all products in 1965 were nearly 9 per cent below the average for 1947-49. During the same period, weekly wage rates to labor have gone up 107 per cent. Things farmers bought rose in price by 28.3 per cent.

No, the farmer is not to blame for inflation. Inflation is the result of too many people asking too much from their government, and the government trying to provide too many "free" services and handouts. In defending the farmer, Farm Journal magazine says, "...we suggest that they, the Secretary of Agriculture, the President, the rest of his administration -- and Congress - concern themselves more with the real cause of inflation: government spending and expansionary fiscal policies. Let's have less wailing about food prices and some real shouting about that."

Doc. Duncan Says

Bang went prospects for oil in Swamp East Mo., for at least another thousand years. Radio says shale in the Rockies contains three times the known reserve of the entire world. It's no wonder our boys in Jeff City passed a law to block production in Mo. that could have worked a hardship on the monopoly. Like the Ozark minerals, 85% of this shale land belongs to Unk and the prospects are that no royalties will go to prior landowners, parks. You see, a few short years ago Unk (the taxpayers) put up the dough to build two pilot plants to invent a process for extracting oil from shale. The news leaked out that they made gasoline for 12 1/2¢ per gallon. It was also reported the monopoly ask for the rights to use the process and lease shale lands. Evidently there was a compromise. The plants was shut down and by this date maybe rotted down. Possibly some top hat boys feel they may get flung out of office in the near future and should get theirs now while the getting is good. May have another Tea Pot Dome.

H.L. Hunt Says

ACTIVATE ONE CONVERT A WEEK

The concept of government by the people, a sacred principle for generations in this Nation, is dealt with very harshly by the present Electoral College System. Incredible as it may seem, the people of 39 States can be disfranchised by the other 11 States which contain the largest cities. These 11 States, with their big cities, can elect a President even if he lost each of the other 39 States 5 to 1 or more. Twenty - two of the 32 Presidents who have been elected to office were from only four States.

A vast number of citizens earnestly desire this Reform. If two million of them would start today and activate one other in a week who would in turn activate another in a week, at the end of one week there would be four million activists; in two weeks there would be eight million; in three weeks 6 million; in four weeks 32 million, and in five weeks 64 million. They need only activate: Converts are awaiting.

If one fails his weekly mission his clergyman, a friend among educators or a "good mixer" may bring up the average by activating 10 or more that week. The Crusade could become enjoyable and irresistible. This Reform has been under way for many years, but whether or not it is accomplished is dependent upon people like you. For 15 years able Statesmen and good organizations have started, but when the movement failed to reach Crusade proportions nothing happened, and this much-desired Reform fell by the wayside. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Judging by the mail that has been flooding both congress and this newspaper office, the issue of Doddism is much broader than that of Tom Dodd himself.

The public is fed up with having one law for it and another law for congress. People figure that the men who write the laws should not only know them but live up to them as conscientiously as those who don't write them but must obey them.

The case of Sen. Dodd is a very important example. The senate is getting awfully tired of hearing about this case and would like to forget it. Senators have been hoping against hope that he would resign. But the public is not tired and will probably keep pouring on the heat, not only regarding Dodd but the whole question of ethical conduct. The least that the public wants is observance of the law; and, anyway you look at it, Dodd has violated the law in at least five instances as follows:

1. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act, Section 658C of the 1953 supplement to the general statutes states: "the payments, expenditures, promises and liabilities which any candidate for senator of the United States may make or incur, directly or indirectly, in aid of his nomination or election or both, shall not exceed one - third of the salary of said office for one year."

Dodd's salary as senator for one year is $30,000. In 1963 alone, which was not an election year, he raised $54,663.

Dodd is a lawyer. He has practiced law in Connecticut most of his life, having been a U. S. Attorney, a congressman and a senator. Yet he wantonly and knowingly violated the election laws of Connecticut. Were he an ordinary citizen he would be prosecuted and put in jail.

REWARD FOR FAVORS

2. The Connecticut Corrupt Practices Act also forbids the acceptance of donations and favors from corporations on penalty of $1,000 fine or one year in jail or both. Dodd received such favors as the loan of an Oldsmobile for three years, countless free airplane trips, plus donations from Connecticut insurance companies, gun manufacturers, and many other firms for which he did favors.

3. It is against the federal law for a member of congress to seek favors for anyone from the federal government in return for monetary or material reward. Dodd performed a long list of favors already published in this column, sustained by sworn testimony, and too numerous to mention here.

4. The Federal Corrupt Practices Act forbids any candidate to receive contributions from a corporation. Dodd received $18,000 from the International Latex Company, which his former employees testified was to secure an ambassadorship for Abe Spanel, chairman of Latex. The latter point was denied by Dodd, but the first point, namely the receipt of funds from a corporation, was not denied.

5. It is specifically against the law to use campaign funds for personal expenses unless they are listed as personal income, and taxes paid thereon. Dodd used most of the $173,000 he collected at testimonial and campaign dinners for his own use, and he paid no taxes on it.

What the American people will be watching in the Dodd case and other cases of unethical congressional conduct is whether there is going to be one standard of enforcement for the congressmen who make the laws and another standard of enforcement for other people who don't write them but have to obey them.

SUMMER JOBS NEEDED

The White House is worried that this summer may be as long, hot and frustrating as the last one unless private employers get solidly behind the President's youth opportunity campaign for vacation jobs for students.

Approximately 13 million youngsters between 16 and 21 will soon be seeking summer work, many so they can return to school in September. And at least two million will be out of luck unless local employers do their best to help.

Vice President Humphrey, chairman of the job campaign, with Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, spearheaded the employment of one million youngsters in the summer of 1965 and 1,250,000 last summer. This year Humphrey and Wirtz started a month early in order to make a better record.

To this end, acting Commerce Secretary A. B. Trowbridge has sent an open letter to 900,000 employers, and within two weeks had received more than 10,000 replies promising cooperation. Among the employers who are doing their bit are Jones and Laughlin Steel of Pittsburgh, who hired 1,200 extra personnel from student ranks last summer; Dayco of Dayton, Ohio, 300; and General Telephone of Fort Wayne, Ind., 100.

Barring a maximum national effort, however, the problem will be greater than last year, when about one out of ten young white people seeking jobs, and one out of four Negro students, were out of work and on the streets all summer.

Vice President Humphrey has reminded summer jobs applicants in a booklet of employment tips that they can help themselves by (1) Talking to their school counselor; (2) Carrying social security and draft cards, a work permit and personal references; and (3) "Be clean and dress neat, be honest and polite."

"Play it cool," suggests the VP. "After work, you can wear mod clothes and swing!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Washington, D. C.: -- While coveys of Congressmen are highballing around town on the cocktail circuit, railroad and labor leaders are on a collision course. There's no progress in the crisis.

So, truly knowledgeable insiders are flatly predicting a 10 - day railroad strike beginning at 12:01 May 3 on 200 Class A roads despite the President's warning that "many terrible consequences will flow" from such a nationwide stoppage.

And, lest we forget, this is not merely a matter of fact freight and haulage of vital war materiel. There can be even graver consequences for the undisturbed.

Commuter trains funneling into hundreds of major cities from Jamaica Bay to San Francisco Bay also will be paralyzed. Suburbia, take notice.

"Let's face it," said a grim spokesman for the unruffled Roy Siemiller, AFL - CIO machinists leader, who through this column has been warning of a coast - to - coast stoppage since last December, "there will be a strike unless we get the settlement we seek from the lines.

"We have the right to strike and we will until it becomes illegal. That will take a new law. We'll fight it. We already are battling it.

"We've asked our 1900 lodges to contact their Senators and Representatives. We'll urge our Congressional friends to demand a roll call so those who vote for compulsory arbitration will have to stand up and be counted".

"There's only a 50 - 50 chance we will get a law through, anyway," opined Morse, quite sadly, reminding us that the nation could not take a 48-hour rail stoppage in this day of Vietnam.

"And if the Congress does enact such a law, it will take them at least 10 days to pass it. But they can't count on me. I'll vote against compulsory arbitration. It's not good for labor. It's not good for industry.

"We're finished with economic freedom if we get compulsory collective bargaining".

Those who know R. Siemiller always take his word as a prediction. His soft voice has a built - in gentle chuckle which dilutes the force of what he asserts. And he is talking strike for many reasons -- all inherent on other storm fronts.

One reason unknown to the public is that this, for the moment, is the show of Machinists' vice - president Joe Ramsey who ran the airline strike. "Joe" is set to retire next July 23rd. This is his last go - round. He is determined to skyrocket the $3.05 hourly rate of skilled railroad shop machinists -- a figure as much as $1.50 under other prevailing rates, according to the million - member International Assn. of Machinists.

Siemiller is backing up his departing colleague, whose place in the union's railroad section he will take.

Both were angered by the President's Emergency Board recommendation for a job evaluation study, so it could be determined whether the skilled people deserve to get extra pay.

Retorts the union, the hell with job evaluation. We have been opposed to it for years.

Siemiller and Ramsey want more money for their men now -- without any job analyses and work tests. And they want more than the other on - train unions have agreed to take.

So the railroads' spokesman, old "Doc" Wolfe, says the lines just can't do that, since 70 per cent of the 24 railroad unions have agreed to settle for a five per cent raise.

Siemiller -- now easily more militant than Walter Reuther and the shades of Mike Quill wrapped into one -- replies with a threat to walk out that May night -- unless his people in the railroad shops get seven per cent and special pay for the skilled men.

That's it. That's the deadlock.

As for the threat of Congressional action -- spontaneous and unrehearsed because there is no strike legislation -- the union will fight it for many reasons including the fear of mass firings. Some 17,000 locomotive firemen lost their jobs after Congress passed a compulsory arbitration law during the Kennedy regime back in '63.

So, says Siemiller, "we'll strike the nation's railroads right after midnight May 3. You can say that and be right."

If the shop crafts do hit, it will be the first time in 45 years. But Siemiller never has hesitated to stop history's high-ball express.

Mrs. Ronald Rice

JEFFERSON CITY - Miss Katherine Elizabeth Pollock and Ronald Rice were married March 25 in the First Baptist church.

Miss Pollock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Pollock, 10 Meadow Lark Lane, formerly of 404 Broadway, Sikeston. Pollock was district construction engineer with the district 10 office of the highway department in Sikeston eight years.

James Fuller, minister of music of the First Baptist church, sang "Song of Ruth" by Gounod; "The Lord's Prayer," "He shall Feed His Flock" by Handel; and "Twenty-Third Psalm." Mrs. Wallace Crane, professor of music at Stephens College of Columbia and a former resident of Sikeston, composed the music for the "Twenty-Third Psalm."

The bride chose a floor-length gown of imported linen, fashioned with a bateau neckline and traditional long tapering sleeves. Bands of three dimensional venise lace trimmed the waist and the skirt. The detachable chapel-length train was enhanced by three bands of venise lace.

The bride carried a crescent of giant King Alfred jonquils and lilies of the valley adorned with ribbon streamers tied in lovers' knots and decked with lilies of the valley.

The bride's going away corsage also was taken from an end of the crescent of the bridal bouquet.

Miss Nancy Gilliland, 409 East Capitol Ave., was maid of honor and Miss Elvira Krueger, 409 East Capitol Ave., was bridesmaid.

Attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of lemon imported silk linen. The bodice was fashioned with round semi-scooped neckline and short sleeves. The controlled skirt was accented in back with a floating watteau panel.

They wore matching face-length veils held by a crown of swissbraid. Each held a single white Dutch iris, encircled with sweet alyssum, trimmed with green and yellow bow and streamers. Their attire was completed with three quarter length gloves and matching yellow shoes.

Pollock and Nebel also lighted the candles.

Gregory Rice, nephew of the groom, and son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Rice, carried the rings to the altar.

The bride's mother wore a three-piece lilac knit dress with three quarter sleeves. Her hat was a satin pillbox surrounded by a crown of satin petals covered with soft lilac veiling.

The groom's mother chose a three-piece aqua dress with patterned overblouse. Her hat was a halo of black felt with a single feather to the side and veiling drifting to her face. A single white calla lily with a corona of individual hyacinth blossoms was at the shoulder of each.

All wedding flower arrangements were designed by the bride's mother.

The reception was held at the church. Mrs. L. V. McLaughlin was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Dale Pollock, aunt of the bride, serving the cake; Miss Judy Rice, cousin of the groom; Miss Shirley Jacobs, and Mrs. Walter Liddell, aunt of the bride. Mrs. McLaughlin is a former Sikeston resident. Her husband was district 10 engineer of the highway department.

The bride is a 1961 graduate of Sikeston high school and is a 1964 graduate of Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

The groom is a 1957 graduate of Jefferson City high school and a 1966 graduate of Lincoln University. He is employed as an accountant at Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company of Missouri.

The couple will live at 1428 West Main St.

CANALOU - The Community club met in the home of Mrs. David Croom for dessert Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

She said that in their zeal for losing weight, people will endanger their health by cutting out necessary vitamins and other food values, along with calories. The extension service has charts on this subject.

Mrs. F. A. Mitchell and Mrs. Croom are on a screening committee for Job Corps candidates. Applicants should contact them.

The next meeting of the club will be on May 17 with Mrs. Orrin Hunt.

Mrs. Ronald Rice

JEFFERSON CITY - Miss Katherine Elizabeth Pollock and Ronald Rice were married March 25 in the First Baptist church.

Miss Pollock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Pollock, 10 Meadow Lark Lane, formerly of 404 Broadway, Sikeston. Pollock was district construction engineer with the district 10 office of the highway department in Sikeston eight years.

James Fuller, minister of music of the First Baptist church, sang "Song of Ruth" by Gounod; "The Lord's Prayer," "He shall Feed His Flock" by Handel; and "Twenty-Third Psalm." Mrs. Wallace Crane, professor of music at Stephens College of Columbia and a former resident of Sikeston, composed the music for the "Twenty-Third Psalm."

The bride chose a floor-length gown of imported linen, fashioned with a bateau neckline and traditional long tapering sleeves. Bands of three dimensional venise lace trimmed the waist and the skirt. The detachable chapel-length train was enhanced by three bands of venise lace.

The bouffant elbow-length veil of imported silk illusion, with hand-rolled edge, was secured by a cluster of silk petals outlined with seed pearls.

The bride carried a crescent of giant King Alfred jonquils and lilies of the valley adorned with ribbon streamers tied in lovers' knots and decked with lilies of the valley.

The bride's going away corsage also was taken from an end of the crescent of the bridal bouquet.

Miss Nancy Gilliland, 409 East Capitol Ave., was maid of honor and Miss Elvira Krueger, 409 East Capitol Ave., was bridesmaid.

Attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of lemon imported silk linen. The bodice was fashioned with round semi-scooped neckline and short sleeves. The controlled skirt was accented in back with a floating watteau panel.

They wore matching face-length veils held by a crown of swissbraid. Each held a single white Dutch iris, encircled with sweet alyssum, trimmed with green and yellow bow and streamers. Their attire was completed with three quarter length gloves and matching yellow shoes.

Pollock and Nebel also lighted the candles.

Gregory Rice, nephew of the groom, and son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Rice, carried the rings to the altar.

The bride's mother wore a three-piece lilac knit dress with three quarter sleeves. Her hat was a satin pillbox surrounded by a crown of satin petals covered with soft lilac veiling.

The groom's mother chose a three-piece aqua dress with patterned overblouse. Her hat was a halo of black felt with a single feather to the side and veiling drifting to her face. A single white calla lily with a corona of individual hyacinth blossoms was at the shoulder of each.

All wedding flower arrangements were designed by the bride's mother.

The reception was held at the church. Mrs. L. V. McLaughlin was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Dale Pollock, aunt of the bride, serving the cake; Miss Judy Rice, cousin of the groom; Miss Shirley Jacobs, and Mrs. Walter Liddell, aunt of the bride. Mrs. McLaughlin is a former Sikeston resident. Her husband was district 10 engineer of the highway department.

Sikeston Wins Sub-District

Bruce Farris Hurls No-Hitter

By RON JAYNES
Standard Sports Editor

A no hit, 17 strike out performance by Sophomore, Bruce Farris enabled the Bulldogs to defend their sub-district baseball title and beat the Richland Rebels, 5-0.

The Dogs defeated the Rebels for the championship last season and moved through district and sectional play and into the semi-finals of the state high school baseball tournament before being defeated.

Yesterday's win was the Dog's sixth against one loss and it was right hander Farris' second of the season against no losses.

Farris was superb, not yielding a base on balls.

Loser Stan Gaylord, who had won five games this season, yielded nine hits and gave up two bases on balls in his seven innings of pitching. Gaylord had poor backing in the field. The team as a whole committed six errors leading to a run in each of the Dogs third and fourth innings.

Last season in district play the Bulldogs had trouble with a left handed pitcher. Yesterday's cool weather seemed to have made the Rebels ace hurler a little wild and allowed the Dogs to advance extra bases on two wild pitches and one balk.

Farris retired the side on strikeouts in four of the seven innings of hurling and allowed only one ball to get out of the infield, that for the second out in the final inning. He faced 21 batters.

The Bulldogs' infield made only three putouts in the game, one in the second by the second baseman, one in the third by the second baseman and one in the seventh by the second baseman. The putout in the third inning was credited to Mike Garner, who picked the batter off base and caught him in a rundown.

Farris allowed only one base runner during the game and that was in the third inning after two were out. He hit Pat Kirby with a pitch, who was later picked off base for the third out.

The Sikeston squad came to bat in the bottom half of the first inning and had Greg Bailey reach first on an error. Wayne Limbaugh followed with a fielders choice that forced Bailey at second and Garner followed with a drive to center that a fielder caught for the second out. Manley ended the inning by flying out to left field.

The Dogs' first score came in the third inning after two were out. Gary Wiss started the inning by bouncing back to the pitcher. Bailey collected his first hit of the afternoon, stole second base and went to third on Limbaugh's sacrifice fly to left. He scored on Mike Garner's infield error to the shortstop.

Garner went to second on the passed ball at first base on the shortstop's error and scored on Manley's base hit. Webb Edwards forced Manley for the final out of the inning in which the Dogs collected two runs on three hits and one Richland error.

Sikeston pushed across its final runs in the fourth inning after two were out. The Dogs collected hits by Wiss, Felker, Bailey, Garner and Manley for three runs as Richland committed two errors.

Sikeston will meet the winner of this week's sub-district game at Hayti. Campbell is the favorite. The game is scheduled for VFW stadium before May 6.

Bailey and Manley each collected two hits while Garner, Farris, Scudder, Felker and Wiss had one apiece.

Golfers Upset Central

By Arnie

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Bulldog golfers won their sixth straight match of the year yesterday by defeating the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers, 157-159. This match marked the first time the Bulldogs have defeated the Tigers on the Cape course.

Jim Warf, Sikeston's red-hot freshman, led the field with a two over par, 37. Rounding out the top four for the Dogs were Charles Stamp, Chuck Meyers, and Charles Atchison. All three boys carded 40s to bring Sikeston's total to 157.

Central's Bob Spradling finished with a 38 after taking a four-stroke penalty for carrying too many clubs. Bob played well all the way around but under USGA regulations he had to take the penalty. Central Coach Muir stipulated before the match began that USGA rules would govern all play.

The Tigers' Gene Helton and Jerry Kaiser both finished with 40s. Steve Henry carded a 41.

Other scores in the varsity match were Ned Matthews 41 and King Sidwell 42. Dan Beatty and Jay Sheets both shot a 43 for the Tigers.

The junior varsity team match closed in a tie. Both teams carded 182.

Barry "Gour" Greer and Gene Spitzmiller led the Bulldog scorers with 43s followed by David Whiteaker 46 and Rick Fakes, who charged in with 50 strokes.

Brad Kahtz led Central junior varsity scorers with a 42. He was followed by Jim Owens 46, Jim Kein 47, and Rick Adams, who finished with a 47.

Rounding out Central's B scores were Craig Horkey 48, Ricky Drace 53, and Charles Harrison 54.

With this victory under their belt, the SHS golfers are on their way to greater heights. The district match in May will be played over this same course, and with a 157 total, the Dogs are feeling that go all the way spirit.

Cards Go Down In 13

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unsinkable Ted Abernathy has his submarine ball on target again and the Cincinnati Reds are sailing a steady course in the early National League race.

Abernathy torpedoed the skidding Houston Astros with 1 2-3 innings of clutch relief pitching Monday night, protecting a 3-1 victory that ran Cincinnati's winning streak to five games.

The veteran reliever, who throws with an unorthodox underhand motion, rescued winner Sammy Ellis in the eighth inning and registered his fifth save of the young season. He has appeared in eight of the Reds' 13 starts.

"I'm sure glad he's on my team," slugger Deron Johnson said after the Reds drafted Abernathy from Atlanta's Richmond farm club during the winter. "It takes years to learn to hit a curve that goes down, and then you run into a guy like Abernathy who throws one that goes up."

Abernathy, who set an all-time record of 84 appearances — all in relief — and finished with a 2.58 earned run average two years ago while with the Chicago Cubs, slipped to a 4.55 ERA in 58 games for the Cubs and Braves last season.

Atlanta, seeking to protect its younger pitchers from the draft, placed the 34-year-old right-hander on the Richmond roster. The Reds, desperate for relief pitching, grabbed him.

Abernathy's strong finish against the Astros, who have dropped eight in a row, and Tony Perez' three-run homer lifted the Reds into the league lead.

St. Louis dropped a 6-5 decision to Los Angeles in 13 innings and fell into a second-place tie with idle Philadelphia. The Dodgers - Cards struggle was the only other game played in the NL.

76ers NBA Champions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "This is the greatest team in the history of professional basketball," declares Coach Alex Hannum of his Philadelphia 76ers, the champions of the National Basketball Association.

"They established a won-loss record for regular season play, beat the Boston Celtics in the Eastern playoffs and defeated San Francisco's Warriors twice on their own court."

By a 125-122 margin, the 76ers beat the Warriors on Monday night to capture the final playoffs, four games to two. Superiority at the free throw line and rugged play by Wilt Chamberlain did it.

The 7-foot 1-inch Most Valuable Player of the NBA capped his performance when he loomed in front of the Warriors' Rick Barry and forced an off-line shot when the San Franciscans trailed by one point with 15 seconds to play.

Stars of the 76ers were many, a team where the players picked each other up and where a 12-point deficit late in the third quarter of the final game was more than made up. Overall, Philadelphia hit 41 times from the free throw line while the Warriors notched only 22 free throws.

Wally Jones started them out with a 16-point first quarter and reserve Billy Cunningham hit for 11 of his 17 total in the final stanza when the 76ers surged back.

Still the big man was Chamberlain with 24 points, 23 rebonds and a non-statistical job of forcing and blocking Warrior shots. Winners of 68 while losing only 13 during the regular season, the Philadelphians were hard pressed in this playoff.

Going in with a 3-2 margin in games, the 76ers trailed 94-82 with 4 minutes, 39 seconds remaining in the third period. As Chamberlain put it, "I'd rather be a little behind because then we don't become complacent."

Coach Bill Sharman of San Francisco, admitting his club has great potential with its many young players, added, "You have to look to the 76ers for the next few years. They will be tough to beat."

Netmen Shut Out Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- The Bulldog tennis team shut out the Chaffee Red Devils yesterday 6-0. This was the third victory for the netmen against four defeats.

In the singles division, Junior Wythe Miller came through in flying colors as he defeated Ron Robinson, 6-1 and 6-4. Wythe has been playing well all year but this was his first singles victory.

Bob McCord of the Dogs slipped by Larry Margrabe, 6-1, 2-6, and 7-5.

Sikeston's Hank Lippert came back strong after his narrow defeat Saturday against Cape Girardeau Central. He defeated Dan Sadler 7-5 and 7-5.

"Big Bill" Dickerson won easily over Dan Heeb, 6-0 and 6-3.

"Pro" sets were played in the doubles competition. Sikeston had no trouble in either match.

The netmen will try to bring their record to the 500 mark tomorrow as they journey to Cape Girardeau to play the host Tigers.

Sikeston Wins Sub-District

Bruce Farris Hurls No-Hitter

By RON JAYNES
Standard Sports Editor

A no hit, 17 strike out performance by Sophomore, Bruce Farris enabled the Bulldogs to defend their sub-district baseball title and beat the Richland Rebels, 5-0.

The Dogs defeated the Rebels for the championship last season and moved through district and sectional play and into the semi-finals of the state high school baseball tournament before being defeated.

Yesterday's win was the Dog's sixth against one loss and it was right hander Farris' second of the season against no losses.

Farris was superb, not yielding a base on balls.

Loser Stan Gaylord, who had won five games this season, yielded nine hits and gave up two bases on balls in his seven innings of pitching. Gaylord had poor backing in the field. The team as a whole committed six errors leading to a run in each of the Dogs third and fourth innings.

Last season in district play the Bulldogs had trouble with a left handed pitcher. Yesterday's cool weather seemed to have made the Rebels ace hurler a little wild and allowed the Dogs to advance extra bases on two wild pitches and one balk.

Farris retired the side on strikeouts in four of the seven innings of hurling and allowed only one ball to get out of the infield, that for the second out in the final inning. He faced 21 batters.

The Bulldogs' infield made only three putouts in the game, one in the second by the second baseman, one in the third by the second baseman and one in the seventh by the second baseman. The putout in the third inning was credited to Mike Garner, who picked the batter off base and caught him in a rundown.

Farris allowed only one base runner during the game and that was in the third inning after two were out. He hit Pat Kirby with a pitch, who was later picked off base for the third out.

The Sikeston squad came to bat in the bottom half of the first inning and had Greg Bailey reach first on an error. Wayne Limbaugh followed with a fielders choice that forced Bailey at second and Garner followed with a drive to center that a fielder caught for the second out. Manley ended the inning by flying out to left field.

The Dogs' first score came in the third inning after two were out. Gary Wiss started the inning by bouncing back to the pitcher. Bailey collected his first hit of the afternoon, stole second base and went to third on Limbaugh's sacrifice fly to left. He scored on Mike Garner's infield error to the shortstop.

Garner went to second on the passed ball at first base on the shortstop's error and scored on Manley's base hit. Webb Edwards forced Manley for the final out of the inning in which the Dogs collected two runs on three hits and one Richland error.

Sikeston pushed across its final runs in the fourth inning after two were out. The Dogs collected hits by Wiss, Felker, Bailey, Garner and Manley for three runs as Richland committed two errors.

Sikeston will meet the winner of this week's sub-district game at Hayti. Campbell is the favorite. The game is scheduled for VFW stadium before May 6.

Bailey and Manley each collected two hits while Garner, Farris, Scudder, Felker and Wiss had one apiece.

Golfers Upset Central

By Arnie

CAPE GIRARDEAU - The Bulldog golfers won their sixth straight match of the year yesterday by defeating the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers, 157-159. This match marked the first time the Bulldogs have defeated the Tigers on the Cape course.

Jim Warf, Sikeston's red-hot freshman, led the field with a two over par, 37. Rounding out the top four for the Dogs were Charles Stamp, Chuck Meyers, and Charles Atchison. All three boys carded 40s to bring Sikeston's total to 157.

Central's Bob Spradling finished with a 38 after taking a four-stroke penalty for carrying too many clubs. Bob played well all the way around but under USGA regulations he had to take the penalty. Central Coach Muir stipulated before the match began that USGA rules would govern all play.

The Tigers' Gene Helton and Jerry Kaiser both finished with 40s. Steve Henry carded a 41.

Other scores in the varsity match were Ned Matthews 41 and King Sidwell 42. Dan Beatty and Jay Sheets both shot a 43 for the Tigers.

The junior varsity team match closed in a tie. Both teams carded 182.

Barry "Gour" Greer and Gene Spitzmiller led the Bulldog scorers with 43s followed by David Whiteaker 46 and Rick Fakes, who charged in with 50 strokes.

Brad Kahtz led Central junior varsity scorers with a 42. He was followed by Jim Owens 46, Jim Kein 47, and Rick Adams, who finished with a 47.

Rounding out Central's B scores were Craig Horkey 48, Ricky Drace 53, and Charles Harrison 54.

With this victory under their belt, the SHS golfers are on their way to greater heights. The district match in May will be played over this same course, and with a 157 total, the Dogs are feeling that go all the way spirit.

Cards Go Down In 13

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unsinkable Ted Abernathy has his submarine ball on target again and the Cincinnati Reds are sailing a steady course in the early National League race.

Abernathy torpedoed the skidding Houston Astros with 1 2-3 innings of clutch relief pitching Monday night, protecting a 3-1 victory that ran Cincinnati's winning streak to five games.

The veteran reliever, who throws with an unorthodox underhand motion, rescued winner Sammy Ellis in the eighth inning and registered his fifth save of the young season. He has appeared in eight of the Reds' 13 starts.

"I'm sure glad he's on my team," slugger Deron Johnson said after the Reds drafted Abernathy from Atlanta's Richmond farm club during the winter. "It takes years to learn to hit a curve that goes down, and then you run into a guy like Abernathy who throws one that goes up."

Abernathy, who set an all-time record of 84 appearances — all in relief — and finished with a 2.58 earned run average two years ago while with the Chicago Cubs, slipped to a 4.55 ERA in 56 games for the Cubs and Braves last season.

Atlanta, seeking to protect its younger pitchers from the draft, placed the 34-year-old right-hander on the Richmond roster. The Reds, desperate for relief pitching, grabbed him.

Abernathy's strong finish against the Astros, who have dropped eight in a row, and Tony Perez' three-run homer lifted the Reds into the league lead.

St. Louis dropped a 6-5 decision to Los Angeles in 13 innings and fell into a second-place tie with idle Philadelphia. The Dodgers - Cards struggle was the only other game played in the NL.

$620,000 Raised For New Hospital

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The total subscribed to the new St. Francis hospital campaign has reached $620,000. The goal is $1 million.

The general division under the chairmanship of Milton Leyhe will hold its kick-off at the Arena at 7 p.m. May 2. More than 500 will attend. Chairmen, colonels, team captains, team members and other volunteers will attend along with their husbands, wives and friends.

Volunteers will receive prospects pledge cards.

They're having a good time. So what could they possibly need from you?

The point is, you could be there. Salt spray in your face and the whole bit. Because in this land dreams do come true. For a lot of people. Ordinary people.

That's why we need our freedom and independence. So we can all pursue our own special dreams.

Help defend that freedom by joining the Air Force Reserve. If you served as a pilot, navigator, panel engineer or loadmaster, you can especially help. If you are an inactive Reservist, you are urged to participate actively in the Ready Reserve. You'll like the change of pace from your normal daily routine. And you get Reserve pay too.

Let's keep this a land where dreams can come true.

Battle May 5 In Portageville

PORTAGEVILLE -- A Battle Of The Bands will be held May 5 at the Armory at 7:30 p.m. sponsored by the Jaycees.

The band contest is a new national Jaycee program, begun by the Massachusetts Jaycees. The interest and response generated by teenagers wherever the program has been introduced is unique. The purpose of the contest is to introduce the small teenage bands to the public; encourage the youths in their wholesome activities; and to reward their efforts.

The contest is open to all teenage bands in Missouri. Band members must be between the ages of 13 and 19, at the time of entering the local contest; and each member also must have been a resident of Missouri for at least two months prior to entering Band members must not be professional, in the sense that playing in the band is their sole and fulltime occupation. Members of the winning band must not be replaced prior to State and National finals. Upon entering the State contest proof of age must be presented.

Bands in the contest will be judged and prizes will be awarded. Local prizes will include $50. for first place; $35. for second place. The first place winner will be sent to the State Contest.

Winner of the State contest will receive a recording contract and will represent Missouri in the National Contest. The winning national band will receive recording and movie contracts; a new car for each winning band member's family; a $1,000 scholarship for each band member; and a wardrobe.

Area teenage bands interested in entering the local contest may contact Tom Sadler, Phone DR 9-3013 or Don Hawkins, Phone DR 9-5389.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE HOT NUMBER

When buxom Belle walked down the street, it was pure language in action. Consequently, the local telephone company decided to determine whether she was using her telephone for improper purposes by "tapping" it. As it turned out, in thinking that Belle was a hot number, the telephone company had the wrong number. Belle, was as proper as Little Orphan Annie, only better looking.

Unfortunately for the telephone company, it discovered the revelation at the same time Belle discovered the "tapping." Furious, she sued the telephone company for eavesdropping on her.

"I've been embarrassed and sick for weeks knowing that strangers have been listening in on my private conversations," she weeped in court. "A telephone company has no right to peek into the lives of its subscribers."

"It sure does," answered a telephone official. "We've got a right to make sure our telephones are being used only for lawful purposes. In fact, it is our duty."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the telephone company pay for eavesdropping?

This is how the judge ruled: Belle collected. The judge held that a person is entitled to collect for an intrusion into their private activities where the intrusion is of such a nature as to outrage or cause mental suffering, shame or humiliation to a person of ordinary sensibilities.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

But I say unto you. . ., Love your enemies. (Luke 6:27).

PRAYER: O God, forgive us all bitterness and hatred. Help us to love our enemies, even as Jesus taught us to do and as He did. By Thy grace strengthen us. In the Savior's name we ask. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Everybody cries on your shoulder and I want my turn. I honestly don't know what you can do to help me but just letting off steam is worth something.

I'm a dairy worker who wants to stay on the farm but I don't see how I can. Most dairy farmers work almost 16 hours a day and don't even make enough money to support their families. We have to keep up a front for the cows because if they catch us looking sad THEY get depressed and you know Old Bossy's output depends on how happy she is.

I know I could make more money and work shorter hours if I went into another line of work but I like dairy farming and I think I am needed. I don't want to quit. Please give me some advice, Ann Landers, and some hope, if you can. -- C. P., RUDYARD, MICH.

Dear C. P.: I don't know much about dairy farming, but I have a good friend who does. I have asked Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to respond to your letter. Here is his answer:

Dear Mr. C. P.: Please don't quit. We need you.

Every word of your letter is true. Dairy farmers are overworked and underpaid. Most dairy farmers get at 4 o'clock in the morning seven days a week, and their average pay runs approximately 60 cents an hour.

When dairy farmers began to leave the farms in droves last year to take jobs offering better pay and shorter hours, the Department of Agriculture gave milk supports a healthy boost. This kept some of the dairy farmers on the job. You were one who stayed, and we are grateful.

Please don't give up. We are keeping an eye on you fellows. Tell this to your cows, too. We want them to be happy so they will give more milk and you income will go up. You deserve it. -- Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dear Ann Landers: It is exactly one year ago today that he left me. I was 30. He was 33. We had a beautiful home and three handsome sons who look very much like their father. I remember now the times he asked me to invite his mother to dinner. I said, "I refuse to put myself through the agony. I can't stand her." And then there were the times he asked me to invite his business associates for cocktails. I told him to keep his business friends out of our home because they were not our social equals, and it wouldn't do to mix the two.

One morning he left for work as usual. He telephoned from his office to say he was coming back at 3:00 P.M. -- to pack his bags. I asked him where he was going. He answered: "I am leaving you."

I replied, "You can't go. I love you. He said, "That's the first time you have uttered those words in three years. I've waited a long time to hear them. It's too late now, baby."

Ask the women in your reading audience when was the last time they said "I love you" to a hard - working husband. I have said those words many times lately, but my husband has not been around to hear me.-- STILL HURTING

Dear Hurting: Some people are smart enough to learn from the mistakes of others. Here's your letter for those favored few. Thanks for writing.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put "out" for keeps. You can cool it and say popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

STATE LOSES TAX MONEY ON REBUILT TRUCKS

JEFFERSON CITY - A Missouri corporation recently ordered 20 trucks for use in its business from a large manufacturer. The corporation paid the sales tax to the state and was awaiting delivery when it was notified that shipment would not be made.

The Department of Defense had pre-empted the order to use the trucks in the Viet Nam War, and the state had to refund the sales tax.

But war had had a broader effect on the sales tax in Missouri, according to Director of Revenue Thomas David.

With the shortage of trucks, trucking firms and other corporations have resorted to repairing, and in many cases, completely rebuilding their old trucks to add a few more years of use.

Since no new registration is required for the truck kits used in rebuilding - registration is only required for a new chassis - many truck owners are getting a new truck in effect without having to pay sales tax.

David said the sales tax loss to the state is at least $150,000 a year through such rebuilding of trucks.

On the other hand, common carriers have been exempt from sales taxes under a Missouri statute for years on the repair, replacement and manufacture of their vehicles, whether they be airplanes, trains, or buses.

Reportedly, the pressure for such a statutory exemption came from certain airlines and railroads which operate major maintenance plants in Missouri. Therefore, a jet airliner could receive a new engine, or a truck with all new parts, and the state cannot levy a tax on these items.

David said he could see a financial need for the state to be able to levy sales taxes on items manufactured by or for common carriers, but that this was not within the province of the Department of Revenue - explicitly pointing out that this was a statutory exemption subject to change only by the Legislature.

He is concerned, however, with corporations in the state which do not operate as common carriers, but are virtually rebuilding new trucks on old chassis without reporting this to the sales tax division.

At present, he said there is no way his department can enforce the sales tax on these truck repair kits. But he added that the Attorney General is attempting to find a solution to the problem without making a statutory change, since this is an administrative problem apart from the statutory exemption for common carriers.

HEARNES' TOLL ROAD BILL RECEIVES AMENDMENTS

The House this week was expected to pass Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' toll road bill, but not before it had tacked on several amendments.

High on the governor's legislative priority list, the bill would establish a state toll road authority with the power to conduct feasibility studies for and direct construction of toll roads in the state to supplement the limited resources of the state highway system. The Senate already has passed the measure.

The controversy arose over the bill during debate on the House floor, where certain representatives, led by Rep. James I. Spainhower (D-Marshall), voiced opposition to the provision allowing the proposed toll authority to have unrestricted use of the gross annual revenue in the state road fund, primarily when a toll road failed to pay for itself.

Rep. Spainhower managed to gain approval of an amendment which would have limited the amount of the road fund to be used on toll roads to three per cent in any one year.

But in an unusual move, reported to have been prompted by the governor, the House voted the next day to reconsider the Spainhower amendment and then voted it out - leaving the state road fund again available to the toll authority, which will consist of the members of the State Highway Commission and the governor.

Following this action however, Rep. Harold Holliday (D-Kansas City) led a successful assault on the bill in the form of two amendments.

One of these would remove authority from the authority to set speed limits and truck height, weight and width limits for vehicles traveling on the toll roads. He argued that violations of such provisions were punishable misdemeanors and only within the province of the Legislature to stipulate, as it does for all other highways.

Holliday's second amendment would lower the amount of purchases the toll authority could make, above which open bids would be required. The bill provided that the authority could make purchases up to $25,000 without submitting them to bids, and Holliday convinced a majority of the legislators that the amount should be lowered to $5,000 - the same restriction governing purchases by other state agencies.

HOUSE DEFEATS RESORT LIQUOR BILL

A bill which would extend the sale of liquor by the drink to two Lake of the Ozarks resorts was defeated last week in the Missouri House.

As introduced, the bill would allow sale of liquor by the drink to resorts with a minimum of 80 rooms - which would have included only the Lodge of the Four Seasons and Tan-tar-a.

Graham sought to amend the bill and lower the room minimum to 20.

Beckerle charged that such an amendment "would allow any roadside honky-tonk to qualify for a license."

Graham's amendment failed and the bill was defeated 67 to 86.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE HOT NUMBER

When buxom Belle walked down the street, it was pure language in action. Consequently, the local telephone company decided to determine whether she was using her telephone for improper purposes by "tapping" it. As it turned out, in thinking that Belle was a hot number, the telephone company had the wrong number. Belle, was as proper as Little Orphan Annie, only better looking.

Unfortunately for the telephone company, it discovered the revelation at the same time Belle discovered the "tapping." Furious, she sued the telephone company for eavesdropping on her.

"I've been embarrassed and sick for weeks knowing that strangers have been listening in on my private conversations," she weeped in court. "A telephone company has no right to peek into the lives of its subscribers."

"It sure does," answered a telephone official. "We've got a right to make sure our telephones are being used only for lawful purposes. In fact, it is our duty."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the telephone company pay for eavesdropping?

This is how the judge ruled: Belle collected. The judge held that a person is entitled to collect for an intrusion into their private activities where the intrusion is of such a nature as to outrage or cause mental suffering, shame or humiliation to a person of ordinary sensibilities.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: Everybody cries on your shoulder and I want my turn. I honestly don't know what you can do to help me but just letting off steam is worth something.

I'm a dairy worker who wants to stay on the farm but I don't see how I can. Most dairy farmers work almost 16 hours a day and don't even make enough money to support their families. We have to keep up a front for the cows because if they catch us looking sad THEY get depressed and you know Old Bossy's output depends on how happy she is.

I know I could make more money and work shorter hours if I went into another line of work but I like dairy farming and I think I am needed. I don't want to quit. Please give me some advice, Ann Landers, and some hope, if you can. -- C. P., RUDYARD, MICH.

Dear C. P.: I don't know much about dairy farming, but I have a good friend who does. I have asked Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman to respond to your letter. Here is his answer:

Dear Mr. C. P.: Please don't quit. We need you.

Every word of your letter is true. Dairy farmers are overworked and underpaid. Most dairy farmers get at 4 o'clock in the morning seven days a week, and their average pay runs approximately 60 cents an hour.

When dairy farmers began to leave the farms in droves last year to take jobs offering better pay and shorter hours, the Department of Agriculture gave milk supports a healthy boost. This kept some of the dairy farmers on the job. You were one who stayed, and we are grateful.

Please don't give up. We are keeping an eye on you fellows. Tell this to your cows, too. We want them to be happy so they will give more milk and you income will go up. You deserve it. -- Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dear Ann Landers: It is exactly one year ago today that he left me. I was 30. He was 33. We had a beautiful home and three handsome sons who look very much like their father. I remember now the times he asked me to invite his mother to dinner. I said, "I refuse to put myself through the agony. I can't stand her." And then there were the times he asked me to invite his business associates for cocktails. I told him to keep his business friends out of our home because they were not our social equals, and it wouldn't do to mix the two.

One morning he left for work as usual. He telephoned from his office to say he was coming back at 3:00 P.M. -- to pack his bags. I asked him where he was going. He answered: "I am leaving you."

I replied, "You can't go. I love you. He said, "That's the first time you have uttered those words in three years. I've waited a long time to hear them. It's too late now, baby."

Ask the women in your reading audience when was the last time they said "I love you" to a hard - working husband. I have said those words many times lately, but my husband has not been around to hear me.--STILL HURTING

Dear Hurting: Some people are smart enough to learn from the mistakes of others. Here's your letter for those favored few. Thanks for writing.

STATE LOSES TAX MONEY ON REBUILT TRUCKS

JEFFERSON CITY - A Missouri corporation recently ordered 20 trucks for use in its business from a large manufacturer. The corporation paid the sales tax to the state and was awaiting delivery when it was notified that shipment would not be made.

The Department of Defense had pre-empted the order to use the trucks in the Viet Nam War, and the state had to refund the sales tax.

But war had had a broader effect on the sales tax in Missouri, according to Director of Revenue Thomas David.

With the shortage of trucks, trucking firms and other corporations have resorted to repairing, and in many cases, completely rebuilding their old trucks to add a few more years of use.

Since no new registration is required for the truck kits used in rebuilding - registration is only required for a new chassis - many truck owners are getting a new truck in effect without having to pay sales tax.

David said the sales tax loss to the state is at least $150,000 a year through such rebuilding of trucks.

On the other hand, common carriers have been exempt from sales taxes under a Missouri statute for years on the repair, replacement and manufacture of their vehicles, whether they be airplanes, trains, or buses.

Reportedly, the pressure for such a statutory exemption came from certain airlines and railroads which operate major maintenance plants in Missouri. Therefore, a jet airliner could receive a new engine, or a truck with all new parts, and the state cannot levy a tax on these items.

David said he could see a financial need for the state to be able to levy sales taxes on items manufactured by or for common carriers, but that this was not within the province of the Department of Revenue - explicitly pointing out that this was a statutory exemption subject to change only by the Legislature.

He is concerned, however, with corporations in the state which do not operate as common carriers, but are virtually rebuilding new trucks on old chassis without reporting this to the sales tax division.

At present, he said there is no way his department can enforce the sales tax on these truck repair kits. But he added that the Attorney General is attempting to find a solution to the problem without making a statutory change, since this is an administrative problem-apart from the statutory exemption for common carriers.

HEARNES' TOLL ROAD BILL RECEIVES AMENDMENTS

The House this week was expected to pass Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' toll road bill, but not before it had tacked on several amendments.

High on the governor's legislative priority list, the bill would establish a state toll road authority with the power to conduct feasibility studies for and direct construction of toll roads in the state to supplement the limited resources of the state highway system. The Senate already has passed the measure.

The controversy arose over the bill during debate on the House floor, where certain representatives, led by Rep. James I. Spainhower (D-Marshall), voiced opposition to the provision allowing the proposed toll authority to have unrestricted use of the gross annual revenue in the state road fund, primarily when a toll road failed to pay for itself.

Rep. Spainhower managed to gain approval of an amendment which would have limited the amount of the road fund to be used on toll roads to three per cent in any one year.

But in an unusual move, reported to have been prompted by the governor, the House voted the next day to reconsider the Spainhower amendment and then voted it out - leaving the state road fund again available to the toll authority, which will consist of the members of the State Highway Commission and the governor.

Following this action however, Rep. Harold Holliday (D-Kansas City) led a successful assault on the bill in the form of two amendments.

One of these would remove authority from the authority to set speed limits and truck height, weight and width limits for vehicles traveling on the toll roads. He argued that violations of such provisions were punishable misdemeanors and only within the province of the Legislature to stipulate, as it does for all other highways.

Holliday's second amendment would lower the amount of purchases the toll authority could make, above which open bids would be required. The bill provided that the authority could make purchases up to $25,000 without submitting them to bids, and Holliday convinced a majority of the legislators that the amount should be lowered to $5,000 - the same restriction governing purchases by other state agencies.

The average adult age 25 and older in Missouri has completed 9½ years of formal education and has an average annual income of $3,800. In 1960 Missouri was 20 per cent below the national average in number of residents who were college graduates.

It was noted that the Head Start program has been successful in preparing preschool children for the formal education experience and that 29 states provide state funds for kindergarten. Missouri provides no state funds for kindergarten.

nam position. The process began Saturday with a call for redoubled peace efforts.

"The only rational policy is to pursue peace with at least as much vigor and invention as we now pursue war," Percy said.

On Sunday, he criticized current bombing policies, saying U.S. warplanes should aim at carefully selected infiltration routes, not at power plants and similar targets.

"If we bomb all over North Vietnam, we constantly run the risk of involving innocent people, innocent civilians who have not been forewarned that there will be bombing in those areas," Percy said.

At the AP meeting in New York, Percy restated his critical view of administration peace terms, suggested Asian nations send more troops to Vietnam and proposed once again they take the initiative in seeking a settlement.

Counseling against escalation of any sort, he said the United States must limit both its combat measures and its settlement hopes to an agreement assuring South Vietnamese freedom from North Vietnamese coercion.

"Such a settlement will require that the Viet Cong be assured of participation in South Vietnamese political life as a legal political party competing peacefully at the polls and shunning violence," Percy said.

In Columbus, Jerry Weiner, attorney for Novel, told of the newspaper story and speaking for Novel, said of the CIA link report: "It's utterly ridiculous. Novel is not now and has never been a CIA agent."

Novel has referred to the alleged bunker burglary as "the most patriotic burglary in history." He has told associates, the newspaper said, that the munitions burglary was "a war materials pickup made at the direction of his CIA contact."

In a story appearing in the Dayton Daily News, Novel said: "I think Garrison will expose some CIA operations in Louisiana". He did not elaborate.

The States-Item quoted Novel as saying he was working for the CIA in New Orleans. Part of his job, he contends, was to operate the Evergreen Advertising Agency as a front of CIA communications.

Novel prepared special radio commercials for use in the United States and Canada, the newspaper said, to alert agents to the date of the Bay of Pigs invasion. The key alert codes were "Star Christmas trees, and "holiday trees." Novel's agency placed $72,000 worth of radio time in 1960, the story said.

Novel said Ferris and several Cubans were involved in the explosives bunker incident.

Novel said the explosives were picked up and consolidated soon after the bunker incident. He said they were eventually taken by boat to Cuba for use in a diversionary operation in connection with the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Garrison's charges states the bunker incident took place Aug. 1, 1961 - three months after the Cuban invasion.

Houma police say records of the burglary are missing.

Novel made his statements to the Dayton Daily News and the States-Item. In Ohio, he has repeatedly branded Garrison's probe a "fraud."

The car was parked about one mile north of Oran on Highway 77, when it was stripped of a battery, lug wrench, spare tire, license plate, car jack and a tow chain, Scott county authorities reported.

Sheriff John Dennis, Scott County, testified that Roberts admitted his part in the vandalism after he was arrested by deputy Jack Stewart.

Shy waived preliminary last Wednesday in magistrate court at Benton.

Both Shy and Roberts will appear Thursday in circuit court.

first of the year for the House and the second for the Senate. As is usual for after-dinner sessions, neither produced much progress.

The Senate advanced a bill to abolish the last vestiges of open range in Missouri, to make illegal those little pockets in the Ozark hills where livestock may run at large.

It has been a prime controversy in past legislative sessions but advancement in the Senate came without any opposition.

State and federal agencies would have to pay half the cost of fencing the perimeters of publicly owned land another bill advanced.

Also moved up after long argument was a measure to allow 65-foot combination truck outfits to travel any highway in the state. Now they are allowed only on designated routes.

The Senate also advanced a bill to raise the pay of Dr. George A. Ulett, director of the Division of Mental Diseases, from his present $25,000 a year to $35,000.

In the House even less was accomplished.

Sponsors had to lay back a bill calling for a seven-member commission to set up a master plan for reorganization of all public school districts. Opposition flared and restrictive amendments were offered one after another.

Advanced were bills to:

Extend state aid to education of exceptional but not gifted children.

Provide teacher retirement benefits or teachers working in state mental hospitals.

Crum Admits To Forgeries Police Say

James Willie Crum, 18, Matthews, has admitted to taking part in the passing of three forged checks and attempting to pass two other checks in the past few months, police said today.

Crum was arrested by police Saturday at Graber's Store, 106 East Front, and has admitted to attempting to pass a $25 forged check there, police reported.

He also attempted to pass a check for $25 during March at Knight's Department Store, 112 North New Madrid, forged on "Doyle Porter." He walked off and left a radio behind while persons at the store were reviewing the check, police said.

Crum admitted to passing a $25 check also at Barkett's Big Star Market, Highway 60 East, on March 7, forged on "James W. Hodges and made to "Freddie Agee," police reported.

He admitted passing another $25 check at the J. C. Penney Co., Inc., 101 New Madrid, March 30, forged on "A. D. Throop." A $30 check was passed at Jerry's Quick Service, Matthews by Crum, police said. He forged the name of "James W. Hodges" at the grocery store, police reported.

Sgt. Leonard Campbell reported that Crum admitted to the forgery during questioning Monday.

In other police activity, a 14 year old Sikeston youth was arrested Monday night after the car he was driving went out of control in the 1600 block of East Kathleen and knocked over three mailboxes. The youths name was withheld because he is a juvenile.

Mrs. Jesse Rodgers, 244 Watson, reported to police Monday afternoon that her house was broken into and $5.50 was taken from her daughter's piggy bank. The house was ransacked, police reported.

Fern McCain, 903 South Prairie, reported to police Monday that her billfold containing $24 and an identification and credit cards was taken Friday from Sikeston Laundry and Cleaners, 517 East Malone, police said.

Officer Johnny Taylor reported at noon Monday that six parking meters on North Kingshighway and one meter on West Malone were damaged.

Jerry Agee, 18, 213 Petty, was arrested by police Monday at his residence and transferred to Mississippi county authorities on a state warrant.

The average adult age 25 and older in Missouri has completed 9½ years of formal education and has an average annual income of $3,800. In 1960 Missouri was 20 per cent below the national average in number of residents who were college graduates.

It was noted that the Head Start program has been successful in preparing preschool children for the formal education experience and that 29 states provide state funds for kindergarten. Missouri provides no state funds for kindergarten.

nam position. The process began Saturday with a call for redoubled peace efforts.

"The only rational policy is to pursue peace with at least as much vigor and invention as we now pursue war," Percy said.

On Sunday, he criticized current bombing policies, saying U.S. warplanes should aim at carefully selected infiltration routes, not at power plants and similar targets.

"If we bomb all over North Vietnam, we constantly run the risk of involving innocent people, innocent civilians who have not been forewarned that there will be bombing in those areas," Percy said.

At the AP meeting in New York, Percy restated his critical view of administration peace terms, suggested Asian nations send more troops to Vietnam and proposed once again they take the initiative in seeking a settlement.

Counseling against escalation of any sort, he said the United States must limit both its combat measures and its settlement hopes to an agreement assuring South Vietnamese freedom from North Vietnamese coercion.

"Such a settlement will require that the Viet Cong be assured of participation in South Vietnamese political life as a legal political party competing peacefully at the polls and shunning violence," Percy said.

In Columbus, Jerry Weiner, attorney for Novel, told of the newspaper story and speaking for Novel, said of the CIA link report: "It's utterly ridiculous. Novel is not now and has never been a CIA agent."

Novel has referred to the alleged bunker burglary as "the most patriotic burglary in history." He has told associates, the newspaper said, that the munitions burglary was "a war materials pickup made at the direction of his CIA contact."

In a story appearing in the Dayton Daily News, Novel said: "I think Garrison will expose some CIA operations in Louisiana". He did not elaborate.

The States-Item quoted Novel as saying he was working for the CIA in New Orleans. Part of his job, he contends, was to operate the Evergreen Advertising Agency as a front of CIA communications.

Novel prepared special radio commercials for use in the United States and Canada, the newspaper said, to alert agents to the date of the Bay of Pigs invasion. The key alert codes were "Star Christmas trees, and "holiday trees." Novel's agency placed $72,000 worth of radio time in 1960, the story said.

Novel said Ferris and several Cubans were involved in the explosives bunker incident.

Novel said the explosives were picked up and consolidated soon after the bunker incident. He said they were eventually taken by boat to Cuba for use in a diversionary operation in connection with the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Garrison's charges states the bunker incident took place Aug. 1, 1961 - three months after the Cuban invasion.

Houma police say records of the burglary are missing.

Novel made his statements to the Dayton Daily News and the States-Item. In Ohio, he has repeatedly branded Garrison's probe a "fraud."

The car was parked about one mile north of Oran on Highway 77, when it was stripped of a battery, lug wrench, spare tire, license plate, car jack and a tow chain, Scott county authorities reported.

Sheriff John Dennis, Scott County, testified that Roberts admitted his part in the vandalism after he was arrested by deputy Jack Stewart.

Woods was scheduled to appear for preliminary today but did not appear.

Shy waived preliminary last Wednesday in magistrate court at Benton.

Both Shy and Roberts will appear Thursday in circuit court.

first of the year for the House and the second for the Senate. As is usual for after-dinner sessions, neither produced much progress.

The Senate advanced a bill to abolish the last vestiges of open range in Missouri, to make illegal those little pockets in the Ozark hills where livestock may run at large.

It has been a prime controversy in past legislative sessions but advancement in the Senate came without any opposition.

State and federal agencies would have to pay half the cost of fencing the perimeters of publicly owned land another bill advanced.

Also moved up after long argument was a measure to allow 65-foot combination truck outfits to travel any highway in the state. Now they are allowed only on designated routes.

The Senate also advanced a bill to raise the pay of Dr. George A. Ulett, director of the Division of Mental Diseases, from his present $25,000 a year to $35,000.

In the House even less was accomplished.

Sponsors had to lay back a bill calling for a seven-member commission to set up a master plan for reorganization of all public school districts. Opposition flared and restrictive amendments were offered one after another.

Advanced were bills to:

Extend state aid to education of exceptional but not gifted children.

Crum Admits To Forgeries Police Say

James Willie Crum, 18, Matthews, has admitted to taking part in the passing of three forged checks and attempting to pass two other checks in the past few months, police said today.

Crum was arrested by police Saturday at Graber's Store, 106 East Front, and has admitted to attempting to pass a $25 forged check there, police reported.

He also attempted to pass a check for $25 during March at Knight's Department Store, 112 North New Madrid, forged on "Doyle Porter." He walked off and left a radio behind while persons at the store were reviewing the check, police said.

Crum admitted to passing a $25 check also at Barkett's Big Star Market, Highway 60 East, on March 7, forged on "James W. Hodges and made to "Freddie Agee," police reported.

He admitted passing another $25 check at the J. C. Penney Co., Inc., 101 New Madrid, March 30, forged on "A. D. Throop." A $30 check was passed at Jerry's Quick Service, Matthews by Crum, police said. He forged the name of "James W. Hodges" at the grocery store, police reported.

Sgt. Leonard Campbell reported that Crum admitted to the forgery during questioning Monday.

In other police activity, a 14 year old Sikeston youth was arrested Monday night after the car he was driving went out of control in the 1600 block of East Kathleen and knocked over three mailboxes. The youths name was withheld because he is a juvenile.

Mrs. Jesse Rodgers, 244 Watson, reported to police Monday afternoon that her house was broken into and $5.50 was taken from her daughter's piggy bank. The house was ransacked, police reported.

Fern McCain, 903 South Prairie, reported to police Monday that her billfold containing $24 and an identification and credit cards was taken Friday from Sikeston Laundry and Cleaners, 517 East Malone, police said.

Officer Johnny Taylor reported at noon Monday that six parking meters on North Kingshighway and one meter on West Malone were damaged.

Dexter Firm Low Bidder on Bluff School

POPLAR BLUFF--The Brown Construction Company, Dexter, is the apparent low bidder on a contract for construction of the proposed Area Vocational School to be built by the Poplar Bluff School District.

Their bid of $303,665 was one of seven bids received from six Southeast Missouri contractors and a Jonesboro, Ark., builder.

Bid openings were held at 7:30 p.m. last night in the Senior High School Library in the presence of the Poplar Bluff Board of Education.

Other total base bids for the project are as follows: Inland Construction Company, Charleston, Mo. $316,980; Smith & Livingston Construction Company, Poplar Bluff, $327,000; Sites Construction Company, Cape Girardeau, $329,000; W. M. Francis Construction, Lutesville, $335,000; M & M. Construction Company, Jonesboro, Ark., $351,650; and Ray Clinton Construction Company, Sikeston, $358,000.

The bids are subject to further consideration by the Board of Education and the State Department of Education before contracts can be awarded.

Fred M. Morrow, superintendent of schools, said he will meet with officials of the State Department of Education to seek the agency's approval of matching federal funds.

On the state level, sales during March in Missouri amounted to $14,170,527, as reported by John L. Wilson, state chairman. Total for the first three months of 1967 amounted to $41,672,159.00.
